19 Missing as Axis Sub Sinks Tanker in Sight of Jersey Coast

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
NEW YORK, March 10.—An Axis submarine torpedoed the 6,766-ton Gulf oil tanker Gulftrade at 12:40 a. m. today only a few miles off Barnegat, N. J., in the closest approach undersea raiders have yet made to the eastern American coast.

WPA Already Mobilized for Enemy Attacks

By LAMAR Q. BALL.
Revelation came yesterday of intensive WPA mobilization in Georgia to handle work that may result from disasters caused by invading enemies, a human network stretching through the entire state to serve as a shock-sustainer and public morale builder in the event of attack.

WPA workers have been trained, it was revealed, to handle scores of jobs in co-operation with state and local civilian defense organization.

"Our crews are formed," said Harry E. Harman Jr., state WPA administrator, "they're ready for instant action. They know where to report if trouble comes and each man knows the job he must perform."

Funds Available.
Fresh WPA funds, totaling close to a million dollars, have been poured into Georgia in the last few days for this work.

The announcement of the new funds and the widespread work for defense and relief brought an announcement from Harman that virtually all activities have been revamped to bring about an intensive concentration on war services.

The old type of construction projects for benefit of neighborhoods and communities, which served chiefly to provide jobs for Georgia's unemployed, are wiped out in this new war deal.

Personnel Shifted.
The thousands of workers on WPA pay rolls, along with administrative and supervisory personnel, are being shifted as rapidly as possible to the state's war effort activities, said Harman.

Although construction projects now under way will be completed unless they are certified by the Army or Navy as a direct contribution to the nation's war effort.

The heavy influx of funds to finance this all-out war effort will make possible the employment of all persons who have been working under WPA auspices—the only change will be that all of them will be working solely to win the war and none will be engaged on the casual jobs of the past. More funds are expected daily as the program grows.

Training Complete.
Jobs for which WPA workers are trained and are prepared to begin immediately include: Sandbagging of public buildings in cities liable to attack.

Construction of water and sewer systems in localities to which victims in bombed areas might be evacuated.

Construction of new hospitals and additions to existing hospitals.

Third naval district headquarters, announcing the sinking, said 16 of the 35-man crew were rescued by coast guard boats and landed at Tompkinsville, Staten Island.

The navy said the torpedo split the 22-year-old tanker in two, 60 miles from New York city. She was bound, fully loaded, from a southern port to New York.

Captain's Story.
Captain Torger Olsen, 56, of Port Arthur, Texas, a survivor, said all the crew members left the ship safely and that the missing men were in two lifeboats which were carried away by high waves.

"After we got as far as Barnegat we thought we were safe," Olsen said. "A few minutes before we were struck we saw two ships ahead of us. In order to avoid a collision I ordered the running lights to be put on. We were torpedoed while the lights were burning."

Another survivor, Third Mate Martin Tammick, of Boston, said he was on the bridge when a single torpedo struck without warning.

"It cut us in two," he said. The navy said surface craft, planes and blimps were scouring the area for the missing 19 men.

No Warning Given.
Survivors said the blow came without warning while most of the men were asleep in their bunks.

The torpedo ripped into the starboard side of the vessel about midships, evidently aimed at the engine room.

The naval account, obtained from survivors, said the ship split in two in three minutes and that a huge wave promptly smothered a fire that broke out immediately.

Tons of oil splashed over the vessel.

Seven of the survivors were rescued from the drifting stern of the ship. They told of seeing the submarine surface within 100 yards of the ship and within plain view of land.

The attack occurred 20 miles south of the scene of the torpedoing of the Standard Oil tanker R. P. Reson on February 27. Thirty-nine men went down with the Reson.

Navy Account.
Captain Olsen's account differed slightly from the Navy account. He said his vessel was 3 1/2 miles east of Barnegat lighthouse, and 42 miles from Ambrose lightship when the torpedo struck.

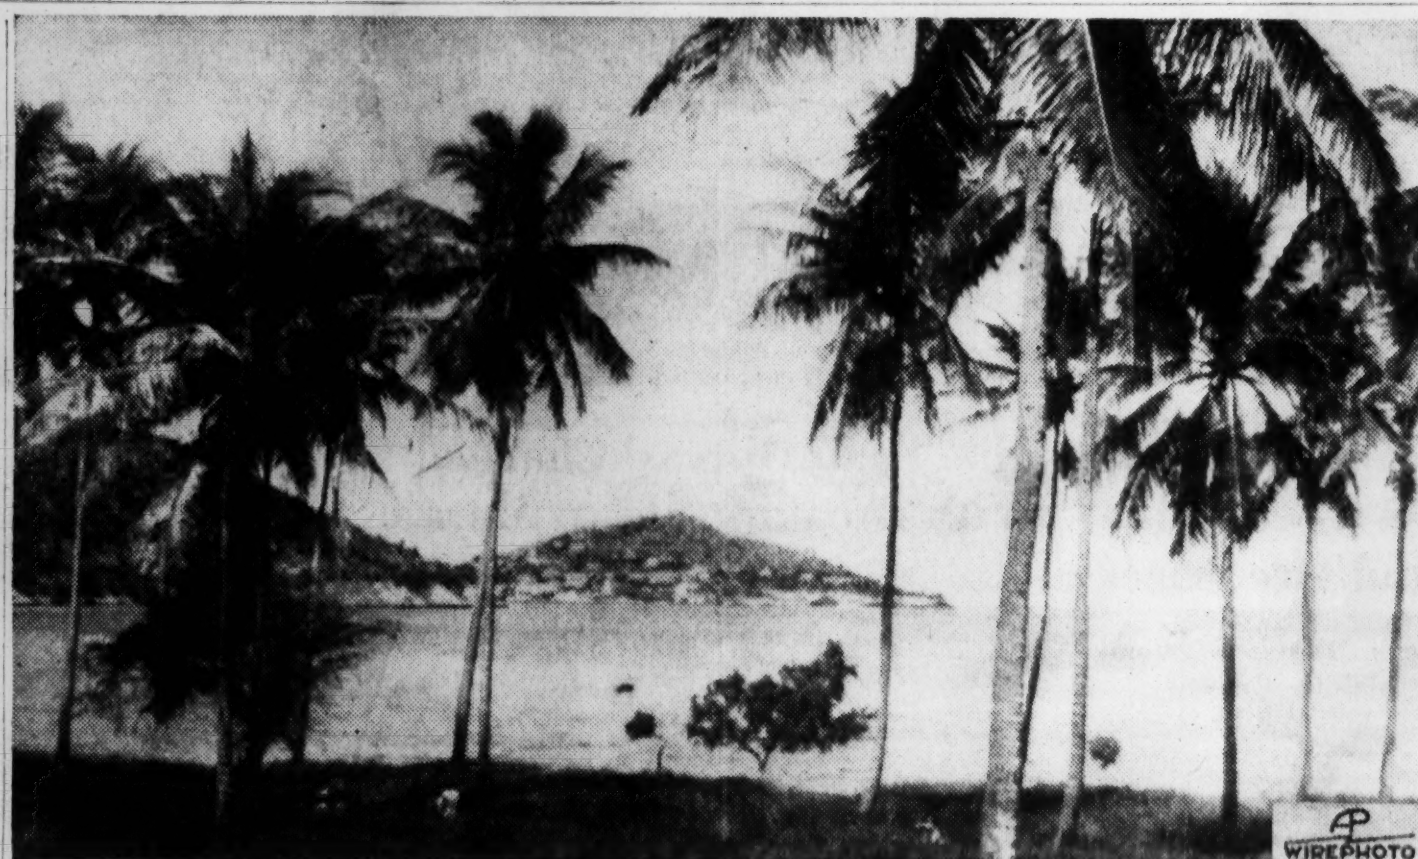

He said that all crew members left the ship in boats but the Navy account said some went overboard trying to launch a boat.

None was injured severely although all suffered from shock.

Captain Olsen said he spent three hours looking for the other boats. The blast, he said, caused the 96-foot foremast to catch fire and watchers from shore said it looked like a flaming signal for help.

"All I wish," said Olsen, "is that they would put me aboard a Coast Guard cutter so I could go out to sea and hunt that sub that sank my ship."

JAP TARGET—Port Moresby, seen here across the bay from a native village, is expected by the Australians to be the next immediate invasion objective of the Japanese, who have been bombing it steadily. Landings on New Guinea have provided the Nipponese with a land base from which to attack Port Moresby, although a precipitous mountain range lies between the Jap landing areas and the important island city.

Names of Two Fired Aides on Huiet's Budget

Commissioner of Labor Ben T. Huiet yesterday submitted a budget to State Auditor B. E. Thrasher Jr., proposing that J. E. B. Stewart and Marion O. (Bugs) O'Connor, both recently found guilty by the United States Civil Service Commission of violating the Hatch act, be placed on the state payroll at $400 per month each and $100 traveling expenses.

Huiet proposed that the two officers be placed in his department, but he did not specify what job or title they would have.

The budget submitted has not yet been approved by the Governor.

Stewart was formerly head of the State Bureau of Unemployment Compensation. Only last week Huiet announced that he had been suspended in compliance with an order by the Civil Service Commission. Stewart, meanwhile, appealed his case, and it is now pending in federal court.

O'Connor was discharged some time ago as head of the United States Employment Service, formerly a state agency.

U. S. Acquires Italian, Nazi Ships From Brazil

RIO DE JANEIRO, March 10.—(AP)—The United States has completed a deal with Brazil for the 24,000-ton former Italian liner Conte Grande and the 16,000-ton former German Windhub, official sources said today.

The Axis ships, seized up in Brazilian ports when the war started and subsequently were taken over by the Brazilian government.

shorter than usual. Your separate skirts can be 30 inches long, belt and hem included. The sweep of your dress skirt—that is the all-around width—is limited to 78 inches, the length of your jacket to 25 inches.

No dress can have its own jacket, cape or redingote. Width and length of coats will be restricted, and wool on wool will be forbidden.

There'll be no more three-piece suits, no wool linings, no wool cloth under fur collars, no matching hats, bags, muffs or patch pockets.

What it slims down to is the straightest, narrowest, least concealing clothes ever invented. No comfortable capes to hide fat upper arms. No billowy dirndl skirts to camouflage oversize thighs.

If you think to get around your problem by having things made at home, you'll have the WPB to deal with even there, for it's the government's stated intention to enlist the aid of pattern companies in the frozen silhouette deal.

33 Prisoners Freed To 'Work on Farms'

Governor Says Paroles, Pardons To Relieve Labor Shortage.

Georgia's pardon and parole machinery was speeded up to a lightning pace yesterday as the Governor followed recommendations of the State Prison and Parole Commission in turning out 33 prisoners in what was described as an effort to help relieve the farm labor shortage during the present emergency.

A steady, plaintive chant of "we're going to put him to work on the farm, Governor," kept the chief executive scribbling his "O. K." on clemency papers from morning until mid-afternoon when the customers ceased coming. He hustled away from his office with this statement:

"We're going to put 'em to work during the war. If they don't work, then we're going to put 'em back in the gang."

Applicants for pardons and paroles filled the outer waiting room and they moved into the Governor's office in droves when the door was opened. Reports trickled down from the fourth floor that the Prison and Parole Commission was doing a "flushing business" getting cases acted on and ready for presentation to the Governor.

Chairman Royal K. Mann explained this by saying the commission was now considering cases three months ahead of the usual schedule. In other words, statutory cases are being taken up three months before the expiration of minimum sentences.

"We're doing this to get more labor on the farms," Mann said. The Governor recently announced he was going to start a flow of labor back to the farm by releasing prisoners and by urging the revival of an old "work or fight" law.

Most of the clemency cases approved yesterday involved such offenses as stealing, and razor fights among Negroes. The Governor, who described them as "crap game stuff," was emphatic in declaring those released would have to go to work and stay on the job.

Price Ceiling Is Ordered on Pork Products

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP)—The government temporarily froze wholesale prices of 90 per cent of the nation's pork products, including ham and bacon, today at the highest levels prevailing between March 3 and March 7.

The ceiling, effective March 23, applies to dressed hogs and wholesale pork cuts, and Price Administrator Leon Henderson declared it was expected "to help importantly in holding down the cost of living."

Last year, consumers spent more than $2,000,000,000 for pork and other hog products.

Neither farmers nor retail outlets are covered directly by the emergency price schedule but Henderson asserted both would feel its effects. When prices are fixed on dressed hogs or pork cuts, prices which the packer may pay for farmers' hogs automatically are limited.

"Pork prices to the retailer are fixed under the regulation," Henderson continued. "OPA will step into the retail picture immediately, should present retail price margins rise beyond possibly a slight increase to reflect changes in replacement costs, thus adding to the consumer's burden unduly."

Products covered under the new ceiling include regular hams, fresh or frozen, regular hams cured, smoked, boiled or baked; baked and boned skinned hams, picnic hams, shoulders, pork loins, canned or packaged spiced luncheon meat made entirely from pork, slab bacon, Canadian bacon, sliced bacon, fat backs, spare ribs, and canned or packaged spiced ham.

The record pointed out that Eidson had been working in the Fulton county dairy since his incarceration and that because of his long hours and the fact he was required to work on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays, as well as frequently at night, he had practically served his sentence.

Captain A. A. Clarke, Fulton county warden, recommended Eidson for a parole, declaring he was a model prisoner and was a trustworthy, the commissioners pointed out. They said "quite a number of reputable citizens of Fulton county" had requested his parole. They added he was an experienced welder and his services were needed by an Atlanta firm which has a number of defense orders.

The recommendation, which was dated March 4, specified that Eidson should report to the Fulton county probation officer once a month for eight months.

Churchill Statement On Concessions to Moslems Is Awaited

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
LONDON, March 10.—The British Imperial forces, abandoning the southern tip of Burma, have slashed through a Japanese trap and were driving tonight into central Burma toward their first mass rendezvous with their Chinese allies in the Shan states for the supreme defense of India.

These maneuvers were announced almost simultaneously with an official disclosure that Prime Minister Churchill would make a statement at the next session of commons, probably on Wednesday, of the government's intentions toward India's demand for concessions toward independence as the price for her all-out co-operation in the war.

The construction of this policy was complicated by the threat uttered by Mohammed Ali Jinnah that the Moslem minority of India would revolt if the plan were opposed to its interests, particularly if it denied Moslem autonomy.

Britain's Hopes.
Operations on the Burma front indicated meantime that Britain was staking everything on the belief that the battered army of Burma could, with Chinese aid, make a prolonged resistance.

A communique from New Delhi announced that the RAF, despite the British retreat and readjustment to new bases, had struck a heavy blow at a Japanese air-drome at Moumlone dropping sticks of bombs among 14 scattered planes and setting two fires. Fighting planes, too, lifted a shield over the retreating troops. A Japanese air raid upon Tharrawaddy was admitted to have killed some Burmese civilians.

Signalling the total loss, for the time being, of extreme southern Burma, American engineers and drillers were carrying out great demolitions at Bassein, the important port 90 miles west of Rangoon, which itself already had been evacuated of military forces and stripped of all of military value.

A field, Lieutenant General Harold R. L. G. Alexander's forces were declared officially to have made a successful withdrawal northward toward central Burma, thus extricating themselves from what had been a most grave position.

Separate Actions.
This was made possible in heavy separate actions, a subsidiary British force previously isolated around Pegu, 40 miles north of Rangoon, smashing its way through the Japanese toward a junction with the main British bodies, which in turn broke through the Japanese astride the Rangoon-Prome road in two violent and bloody tank and infantry assaults.

Rangoon had been made untenable not only by the temporary isolation of the Pegu force, but by enemy landings on the north shore of the Bakir river and on the west bank of the Rangoon river—landings opposed by a British sloop which incidentally captured one enemy craft to find that it contained a single Japanese officer and 55 traitorous Burmese.

Rangoon, according to delayed advices, was left a spectacular area of scorched earth. The great Syrian oil refineries 20 miles downriver were smashed and the

Aussies Strike Back To Delay Invasion Peril

CANBERRA, Australia, Wednesday, March 11.—(AP)—Heavy blows against Japanese troop concentrations in New Guinea, direct hits on transports offshore, and the firing of a big flying boat were announced by the Royal Australian Air Force today in swift response to orders to attack the foe with every resource.

The RAAF onslaught, led by veterans newly returned from other fighting fronts, followed a third Japanese landing yesterday on northeast New Guinea only 45 minutes by fast plane from the Australian mainland.

The most recent invasion was at Finschhafen, which has a small airport and a harbor suitable for ships of moderate draft. The size of the Japanese force was not disclosed. Other landings have been made at Salamaua and Lae in the same area.

Pori Moresby Raided.
These incursions and a tenth air raid on Port Moresby, principal city of New Guinea, erased any lingering official doubts of an invasion attempt against this commonwealth.

The RAAF counterblows, for all their success, were regarded as likely to be primarily of a delaying nature, Australian authorities holding the belief that the Japanese would strike at the mainland as soon as they could consolidate New Guinea positions.

While headquarters of the Australian fighting forces discussed with cabinet members in detail the most likely points of invasion and methods to meet the threat, Lieutenant General Sir Iven Mackay, commander of the home forces, warned the public not to sit back and wait for others to defend this country.

Invasion Expected.
A large-scale invasion by the Japanese "would be difficult but not beyond their capacity," he said at Adelaide.

Prime Minister John Curtin, commenting on the arrival in this country of officials from the Dutch East Indies, described Australia not only as a base from which to attack the enemy but "a sanctuary for all our Allies."

Curtin suggested that next Sunday be set aside as a day of national prayer, noting that it was the anniversary of the German invasion of Czechoslovakia.

In the state of Victoria, liquor restrictions were tightened, with cancellation of late night sales permits, sale of bottles prohibited after 5:30 p. m., and all public functions ordered to be bone-dry.

Springlike Weather
Is Slated To Continue

Officially, spring doesn't start until 10 more days—March 21, to be exact—but things meteorological have been "warming up" in Atlanta this week, and the period of springlike weather is likely to continue today, the weatherman predicts.

The Meteorological Bureau doesn't take much notice of the official change of seasons, because there's never any sudden change. But the weather prognosticators admitted yesterday that spring is now "in the air."

The temperature went as high as 68 degrees yesterday, and as low as 36.

Milady Must Shrink To Wear War Styles

By AMY PORTER.
NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP)—The "frozen silhouette," as decreed by the War Production Board, is causing chills and fevers here in the nation's style center.

Designers of clothes and the women who wear them are upset to think that the way they look today, with skirts so short and furbelows so few, is the way they're going to look from now on in.

Even more so, for specific regulations expected to come through the WPB within the next few weeks will skip here and shorten there until we have a silhouette not merely frozen but shrunken.

If only somebody had warned fashionists "don't drown, your face might freeze that way," they might have loosened and lengthened the silhouette a little bit before all this came to pass.

If you are size 16, the new regulations will decree for you a dress just 42 inches long from neck to hem. That's an inch

West End Air Raid Siren Tests Declared Completely Successful

It was not an air raid last night in West End. There was an unannounced test of a new type of siren local defense officials are contemplating buying.

Firemen, with the siren attached to an automobile, stationed themselves in certain sections of West End, and cut loose the siren while scouts, scattered about in other sections reported on the distance the sound traveled.

From the calls received at police headquarters, fire department and The Constitution, the test must have been very successful.

'Partying' Leaders Of Defense Scored

LOS ANGELES, March 10.—(AP)—Los Angeles leadership of the Women's Ambulance and Defense Corps of America has spent too much time in "tea party discussions and fraternizing with movie stars," Colonel John W. Colbert, national commander, charged today.

Henceforth he announced, the organization's code will be "strictly training for service."

As he laid down future policies of the corps, Dorothy Hewes Bell, deputy commander of the Los Angeles unit, attacked his direction as "totalitarian" and said she is forming a new organization in which there will be no place for men.

Colonel Colbert replaced Commander Bell last night with Junior Commander Victoria Brown and declared that under her direction the corps "will get down to business and place the emphasis on training for service of the country, the purpose for which it was formed."

"The Los Angeles unit is the oldest in the country, and it should be the best," he said. "Too much time has been spent at tea parties and in driving movie stars around. We're getting down to business."

Mrs. Bell said she and her followers will meet tomorrow night to form a new organization, "one with democratic principles."

Warring Powers Begin Strategic Race For Madagascar Isle

LONDON, March 10.—(AP)—A quiet, strategic race was reported to be either under way or imminent tonight between the Axis powers and the United Nations for control of the big French island of Madagascar.

GENERAL ALEXANDER
"Attack and Re-attack"

Last To Leave Dunkirk, He Defends India

Alexander Commands
Line in Burma; Advocate of Offensive.

By The Associated Press.
The last soldier to leave Dunkirk—Lieutenant General H. R. L. G. Alexander—defends today the gates of India, commands the new British line in Burma. His motto is "Attack, attack and re-attack."

In the last war he went over the top 30 times before he was wounded. At Dunkirk, his story is best told in the last paragraph of Commander in Chief Lord Gort's official despatches:

By midnight on the 24-25 June, all the remaining British troops had been embarked. Major General Alexander, with the senior naval officer (Captain W. G. Tennant, R. N.) made a tour of the beaches and harbor in a motor boat, and on being satisfied that no British troops were left on shore, they themselves left for England."

Before that, when things were their worst at Dunkirk, Alexander donned his smartest breeches, shined boots and sat at breakfast in a shell-battered house in the hands of the Japanese, who are reported to have had a pressure mission there for the last six weeks, the island would give the Axis a vital naval base on the western end of the Indian ocean littoral and multiply the complications of getting Allied armies and material to both the middle east and the orient.

Adding to a growing list of reported maneuvers aimed at the island flanking the east coast of Africa, the Turkish radio said today that six light naval units of the Vichy French fleet had been dispatched from Dakar to Madagascar.

This reported Vichy gesture came in the midst of discussion in unofficial London quarters on the possibility that Allied troops might soon move on Madagascar with the intent of beating the Axis to the jump in order to hold the western Indian ocean from the enemy which has sealed its eastern end with the conquest of Malaya and the Indies.

The presence of a Japanese mission on the island—the world's fourth largest—was considered particularly significant in view of Vichy's yielding attitude regarding French Indo-China which set the springboard for the whole Pacific holocaust.

On this same line of reasoning, it was recalled that Vichy's Dakar in French West Africa was at least under suspicion of being an Axis submarine base that supplies have been reported moved through French Tunisia to Field Marshal Erwin Rommel in Libya and that only yesterday the Soviet news agency Tass charged in a dispatch from its Cairo correspondent that Vichy had handed over to the Germans 40 warships still building at the time of the June (1940) armistice. The Tass charge was denied in Vichy today.

before a table covered with a gleaming tablecloth and embellished with a pot of Dundee marmalade. That was symbolic, for in the last war Scottish troops once made a last-hope charge with the cry: "Marmalade forever!"

Another staff officer told Alexander "the situation is catastrophic."

"Sorry," he replied, "I don't understand long words." Then he went out to superintend the evacuation from the beaches and, watching it, sat down to make a sand castle.

During the battle of the Somme, Alexander led not only his own Irish Guards but a mixed assemblage of all regiments, and when all the Irish Guards' machine-guns were killed and their battery overrun, he charged back through the enemy lines with his mixed troops and recaptured the guns.

He is 51 and looks little more than 30; of medium height with a clipped mustache.

were ruthlessly blown up or set on fire," it was added.

The new British-Chinese front now being projected across central Burma from the Chittagong area east of Calcutta to the upper Thailand border is intended to form a constant threat to the right flank of the enemy movement toward India.

Admittedly there is little present chance of reinforcing the British troops in Burma and it was evident that the existing forces and the Chinese were counted on to halt the Japanese until India's own resistance can be fully organized.

Both the British and Chinese were reported concerned at present over the Lashio railroad terminus on the now useless Burma Road, where large stocks of material for Chiang Kai-shek's Burma troops are concentrated.

Japan may try a major assault on Lashio, up the railway and main road through Mandalay and also through the southern Shan states at several points, converging on the roads which run west of the Salween to Lashio or to Hsipaw, 45 miles down the railway from Lashio.

There appeared to be more confidence here in Alexander's ability than in any other British leader since General Sir Archibald P. Wavell smashed the Italians in Libya in 1940.

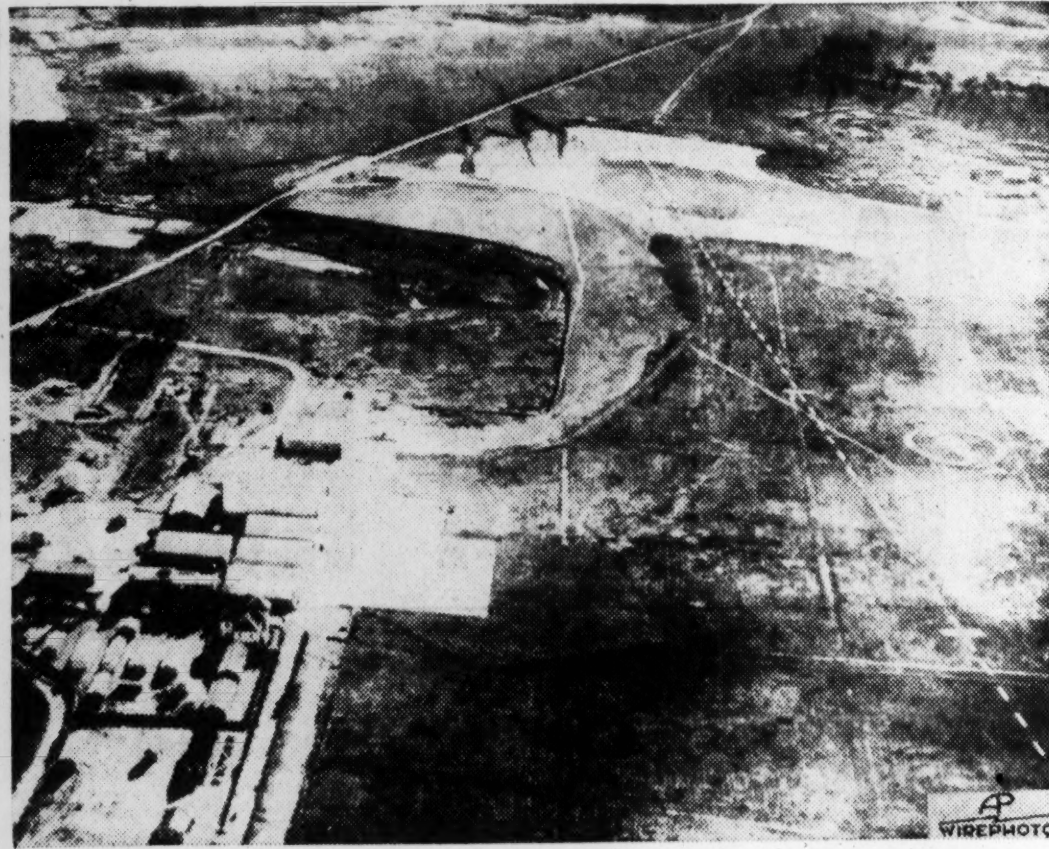

One informant said: "Alexander and his soldiers may perform a military miracle similar to that of MacArthur and his command in the Philippines."

Alexander's immediate objective is to so harry the Japanese forces that they cannot make progress of consequence through Burma without first breaking his forces, and his second objective is to protect the projected Assam road to China intended to carry the traffic of the old and now lost Burma road.

All this marshalling of men and plans for India's defense was accomplished during the day by discussion in unofficial quarters of the possibility that Allied troops might move to occupy the great Vichy-controlled island of Madagascar in the western Indian ocean, which lies close to Africa's east coast and in position to control Allied supply lines around the Cape of Good Hope.

ISLAND AIRPORT—Above is the airport at Tananarive, capital of Vichy-controlled island of Madagascar, off the African coast in the Indian ocean. Ceiling Placed On Used Tube And Tire Prices

Move, Result of Complaints, Effective
March 16.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP)—The government imposed a price ceiling today on used tires and tubes, effective after March 16, in answer to widespread complaints of "price gouging."

The order uses prices existing between October 1 and October 15 as a guide in establishing the ceilings. It also sets up a complex schedule of prices based on the size and condition of the used tires. It affects tires for both passenger cars and trucks.

Price Administrator Leon Henderson said the ceiling was intended to maintain reasonable prices in "the only remaining market for tires and tubes open to the ordinary citizen who cannot satisfy rationing regulation requirements for purchase of new or retreaded tires."

Dealers in many instances, he asserted, had seized upon the rubber shortage to sell used tires at prices considerably higher than the maximum prices allowed for new tires.

Passenger car tires are divided into these four categories, based on the amount of wear evident:

1. Tires which retain 7-32 of an inch or more of tread design depth.
2. Tires retaining more than 3-32 of an inch but less than 7-32 of an inch of tread design depth.
3. Tires that have been regrooved or which retain 3-32 of an inch or less of tread design depth.
4. Tires worn smooth but usable as carcasses for retreading or recapping.

Radio 'Soap Operas' Charged With Breaking Down Morale

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 10.—(AP)—Dr. Louis Berg, New York city psychiatrist, today called present morale-building efforts "mere flailing of wings" and said radio is unwittingly breaking down morale with so-called "soap operas."

He told the Buffalo Advertising Club that 22,000,000 women, "the cornerstone of our society," listen to these serials and "although many of them are good, more of them are very bad."

"The reaction of these programs on the women and indirectly on their men folks tends to undermine the public morale," he continued.

"The dominant pattern in many serials is essentially of a problem play in which nearly all the dramatic values are destructive."

"Such relief from tension as these serials afford is analogous to the relief obtained when one stops beating one's head against a wall. The effects produced are obtained by recapitulation and restatement of central ideas. Endlessly belabored, this creates a morbid and hysterical excitement—the more so when it impinges on nerves already attuned to abnormality."

petroleum co-ordinator, described the oil situation in the nation's most populous area as "very acute," and on his desk was a recommendation from the oil industry. This recommendation had not yet been made public, but informed sources said it would mean that some 10,000,000 motorists in 17 seaboard states and the District of Columbia would have to get along with less gasoline.

An announcement was expected from the co-ordinator soon instituting a sharp curtailment of gasoline supplies for non-essential users.

Some petroleum sources expected him to reduce supplies for eastern filling stations by 15 to 25 per cent and close the stations, possibly throughout the country, from 7 o'clock at night to 7 o'clock in the morning.

It was understood such restrictive measures might be preliminary to all-out rationing by use of coupon books. It was explained that several weeks would be required for the printing of such books if a rigid rationing program were necessary.

Sikorsky Sees Speed of 1,000 Miles Per Hour

Designer Asserts Pilots
Will Be Able To Stand
Velocity.

By STEPHEN J. McDONOUGH.
Associated Press Staff Writer.

Dr. Igor I. Sikorsky, the Russian-born aeronautics expert who designed the first four-motored bomber and the first transoceanic flying boats, declared yesterday that human beings can "take" speeds of 1,000 miles per hour in level flight.

"Such speeds are not possible with the airplanes of today," he said in an interview here before delivering an address on aeronautics at the Georgia Institute of Technology, "but they may be in the future."

Dr. Sikorsky talked with members of the Southeastern Surgical Congress meeting here and gave the physicians and surgeons some lessons on aviation medicine. A shy, courteous little man, he was abashed to discover he knew more than his listeners about this particular branch of medicine.

"Horizontal flight even at 1,000 miles per hour would have no more effect on the body than traveling 60 miles per hour in an automobile or train," he declared. "Also vertical flight such as diving-bombing is not dangerous except in the 'pull out' when the weight of a man's body is multiplied by the force of gravity," he declared, and if his weight is multiplied five or six times he loses consciousness because of the blood being drained out of his brain.

This is the limiting factor in the use of airplanes in war, he told the surgeons, who are going through an intensive three-day course in wartime medical problems.

"We can make planes which can withstand strains far greater than the pilot can take," he added.

Dr. Sikorsky declared present airplane designs will be declared crude within a few years because they are limited to the speed of sound—approximately 745 miles per hour. Such speeds already are being attained in laboratories. But at such terrific velocity the propellers, moving faster than the speed of sound, are likely to crack to pieces and tear an airplane apart.

Asked what the answer is to the problem of achieving such a speed of 1,000 miles per hour in an airplane, Dr. Sikorsky replied: "Frankly, I don't know. I'm just a beginner in the science of aeronautics. It may be through rocket propulsion of airplanes or it may come from some entirely new principle in aeronautics."

Much Scrap Metal Collected in State

ATHENS, Ga., March 10.—(AP)—Enough metal to help build three 37 millimeter antiaircraft guns for every county in the state was collected in 22 counties on "MacArthur Day," Saturday, T. R. Breedlove, chairman of the state USDA War Board, said today.

Initial reports from the 22 counties showed more than 705 tons of scrap iron and steel were started on the way to the nation's steel mills on the day set aside to honor General Douglas MacArthur by collection of waste metals.

Since that day the growth of this office has been continuous—necessitating four expansions to meet the demands of modern banking.

Today, we proudly number some 15,000 customers among our friends at Peachtree and North Avenue . . . and take this opportunity to thank them for their loyalty, and confidence, which after all has been the true measure of our progress.

Our facilities, too, have steadily increased to meet the needs of this growing community. To a complete banking service we have added a night depository—and made available a special parking lot for the exclusive convenience of our customers. Use them whenever you need them.

May we invite you to visit our bank Wednesday, March 11th from 10 till 2 and from 4 till 6 for a leisurely look at our newly improved and expanded quarters. Come see for yourself what has been accomplished over the past 18 years.

3 Airmen 34 Days On Raft Beat Off Sharks With Fists

PEARL HARBOR, T. H., March 10.—(AP)—A gripping story of beating off sharks with bare fists and of battling hunger and thirst while stark-naked and half-crazed came today from three Navy fliers who survived 34 days in stormy south seas on a raft smaller than an ordinary bed.

From the time their land plane was forced down on the Pacific until Gene Aldrich, 24-year-old radioman of Sikeston, Mo., mouthed through parched lips the startling words, "Chief, I see a field of corn," the three lived a story that would tax the imagination of a fiction writer.

The corn field Aldrich thought he saw was a coconut grove.

"Chief" is Harold Dixon, 42, of La Mesa, Cal., aviation chief machinist mate and pilot of the lost plane.

The third of the fliers is Anthony J. Pastula, 24, of Youngstown, Ohio, aviation ordnance man.

They travelled at least 1,000 miles on a rubber life raft to a tiny South Sea island and later were picked up by Navy craft. They now are at Pearl Harbor and almost fully recovered.

Partially Deaf. Dixon now is partially deaf. When an albatross alighted unexpectedly on the raft, Aldrich fired a pistol to near Dixon's ear. Dixon jumped into the sea to retrieve the bird and its flesh helped keep the men alive.

"We were not concerned much the first night," Dixon said. "We knew searchers would be out and sure enough we saw a plane in the morning. But it did not see us and that was the last we saw of possible help."

He told of shooting a big leopard shark which came so close he merely held the pistol against the shark's head. He related that still later he struck another shark with his bare fists.

The men lost from 20 to 50 pounds each in the long ordeal.

Odd Water Supply. They used their own underclothing as sponges when it rained. After the cloth was saturated, they wrung it out to fill a small container with the precious water.

When they finally sighted land, they were in the middle of one of the worst hurricanes in South sea history. Time and again they were tossed into the ocean, only to climb back. The last few days they did not have a stitch of clothing and were sunburned so badly it took weeks to heal.

Aldrich proved the best fisherman, but once his hand was bitten by a shark.

They had practically no water the first four days, until they figured out the idea of using their underclothing as a sponge. Neither did they have food.

Then Aldrich stabbed a fish with his pocketknife and they chewed the raw flesh. They said it was like chewing rubber.

Albatross on Menu. The albatross was next on the menu. After part had been eaten Dixon noted at night that the bird seemed to emit light. He feared it had become poisonous from feeding in phosphorescent waters and heaved the remainder of the carcass overboard.

On the seventh day Aldrich stabbed a four-foot shark.

"We ripped the shark open with pliers," Dixon said. "We had read about vitamins in shark's liver so we ate that first. It was very good. We also ate two sardines found in the shark's stomach with a great deal of relish. And the next day we polished off the shark itself."

On the 14th day Aldrich caught another fish and I caught a bird by reaching up for it when it landed on the raft. It was some sort of tern but to us it tasted like fried chicken. We devoured it on the spot.

"On the 21st day we picked up a coconut."

Things Look Bad. "Things looked bad the 33rd day. We had lost our clothes, all but one shoe and the pistol long since had corroded into uselessness. We found ourselves periodically in a daze."

"I was lying down as best we could on the morning of the 34th day when Henry (Aldrich's nickname) said he saw corn. I didn't pay any attention. I just thought he was gone. Then he said it again, so I stood up and it didn't take long to decide it was an island."

"We tried to paddle all day and finally staggered ashore at dusk."

"The next morning, island natives on beach patrol saw us, gave us kernels of coconuts and sent for help."

Asked how he liked food in Honolulu, Dixon replied: "Regular."

Five Negroes Are Injured In Car, Fire Truck Crash

Five Negroes were injured shortly before midnight last night when the automobile in which they were riding collided at the corner of Whitehall and McDaniels streets with a fire truck, operated by Fireman W. W. Turner. The truck was answering an alarm at the corner of Whitehall terrace and Richardson street.

The car containing the Negroes, Fireman Turner told police, pulled out of McDaniels into Whitehall street, directly into the path of the fire truck. Following a preliminary examination, Grady physicians reported they did not think the Negroes were dangerously injured.

He just asks that the thieves return the records some way or other. As for the money—well, he won't worry about that until after March 16, anyhow.

Real Trouble! Burglars Take Income Figures

Fred Long Asks Thieves To Return Records Stolen With Safe.

By CAROLYN MCKENZIE.

March 16 is a dreaded day for Fred A. Long. Not because he doesn't have the cash to pay his income tax, exactly, but because he doesn't know how much he owes or how to find out.

Long had his statement all ready to file Saturday. He had the year's report from both of his liquor stores. Even had the blanks all folded up in his bank book. But that was Saturday afternoon.

Sunday morning, 2:10 o'clock, brought on his headache.

Two men, identity unknown, walked up to the door of his Peachtree street store, took an automobile jack, tossed it through the door's glass and hastened around the corner to break the burglar alarm switch cords.

Aroused Neighbors. All that commotion (which sounded like an auto wreck to neighbors) made the couple across the street wake and rush to the window. They saw the men proceeding to the back of the store just as deliberately as if Long had been opening it himself. Then they called the police during the interim (officers arrived less than two minutes after burglars were safely on their way) saw the men wheel the safe from the back of the store to the cash register, pocket the money contained there, then roll the safe out into their parked automobile and drive away.

The amazing part of it, according to Long, who quotes his friends, was that the men acted as calm as a group of piano movers on a routine job.

In that haul, the men got more than $1,400 in cash and checks. But the thing that troubles Long is that they got his books, too.

Now he doesn't know how much he owes the government.

"And you know Uncle Sam won't take any excuses," he sighed.

Long is a troubled man. He has a short list of the checks he had in his safe. He knows that the men got about $500 in currency. But they didn't stop off to get a dash of gin or a bottle of Scotch—that is, so far as he can determine.

Makes One Request. So, yesterday Fred A. Long was in something of a dither. He took out his adding machine, all the scratch paper he could find and wrote reams of figures that didn't mean anything to anybody—least of all to him. He knew he made enough in January to buy a new suit, or profited sufficiently in March to take a little spring trip, or cleared enough to throw a party in June. But he didn't know what this meant when he came to personal exemptions or taxes or interest on notes or any of that stuff.

Long has one request to make. He knows the thieves won't return the money. He even figures that's too much to ask. But he does want those papers. He remembers the way the Hauptmann-Lindbergh ransom notes were delivered and the secrecy attached to the return of "hot" documents. But he isn't familiar enough with this sort of racket to specify any methods of returning the books.

His solution is to run an advertisement in The Constitution's personal column in which he simply says: "Will men who took my safe early Sunday return books and papers? They are necessary for my income tax return. It's your patriotic duty."

He just asks that the thieves return the records some way or other. As for the money—well, he won't worry about that until after March 16, anyhow.

WORRIED ABOUT INCOME TAX?—If you're worried about March 16, then take a look at this Atlanta. Unlike most of us, he has the money to pay his tax, that is, if he had any idea how much he owed. A thief, a pair of them, broke into his store Sunday night and stole all Fred A. Long's records. Now he doesn't know what to do for he's sure "Uncle Sam won't accept any excuses."

Surgeons Told Surgeons See How to Relieve Play Based on Pain in Neck Long's Work

Operation Is Described; Draft-Resectee Rehabilitation Is Advocated.

'Story of Anesthesia' Presented at Conference Here.

Surgeons who have used his discovery to alleviate pain and to save countless lives learned last night from a dramatic Theater Guild presentation how Dr. Crawford W. Long, famed Georgia physician, hit upon the use of ether as an anesthetic.

The play was "The Story of Anesthesia," an original three-act drama, given before an audience of surgeons attending the Southeastern Surgical Conference here this week in celebration of the 100th anniversary of Dr. Long's discovery.

A cast of Theater Guild members, headed by the authors of the play, Dr. Frank L. Belyue, Christine Carmichael and Sidney F. Owen, reenacted with skill and stark realism the events leading up to the discovery, reaching a climax with the stage interpretation of the first operation in which Dr. Long made use of his discovery.

Dr. Belyue played Dr. Long and Miss Carmichael took the role of Carolyn Swain, the young woman he married.

According to "The Story of Anesthesia," Dr. Long, a serious-minded, hard-working professional man, first divined the use of ether as an anesthetic at a hilarious "ether party" in his office. Young medical students of that era frequently inhaled a little ether as an easy, inexpensive way of getting intoxicated, the play shows. One of the guests at Dr. Long's "ether party" slipped and hurt his ankle, feeling no pain while anesthetized by the ether. That started Dr. Long on the road to his discovery, which ultimately resulted in an operation on James Venable in 1842 and fame for the Georgia physician.

Dr. Jelsma described to the surgeons the results of 80 operations to relieve a severe pain in the neck, chest, back, arms and hand due to pressure on the nerves running to these parts. He said the operations were "very satisfactory" in restoring to normal persons who were otherwise partially or entirely unfit to work or even perform the most household duties.

Colonel Rowntree urged that the type of patriotism which prompted 28,000 American doctors to give their services to selective service boards be continued. He said the greatest service doctors in the military service is for young men, 21 to 36 years of age.

Lucas Won't Attend WGST Hearing

Arthur Lucas, member of the Lucas and Jenkins theater chain which is seeking approval of a contract to operate Radio Station WGST, will not appear before the Federal Communications Commission when it resumes a hearing March 26 on application for renewal of WGST's license, the Governor said yesterday.

The Governor said Lucas was adopting a "hands off" policy, leaving the matter entirely to the Board of Regents and FCC.

However, the Governor said he was notifying the commission of his desire to appear when the hearing is resumed.

The hearing has been postponed several times because of the failure of Lucas to be present as a witness.

Court Is Ordered To Rehear Plea

A rehearing of a habeas corpus petition brought in United States district court here by a federal prisoner serving 25 years for mail robbery was ordered in Washington yesterday by the United States supreme court.

The highest tribunal held that further probe should be made of the assertion of Blake Centers, of Indian Head, Ky., that he was not properly represented by counsel when he pleaded guilty at Richmond, Ky., April 26, 1935, to taking $12,500 forcibly from a rural mail carrier.

The petition previously was addressed by the district and circuit courts. Centers is represented by Attorney Paul Crutchfield.

U. S. Anti-War Efforts Called 'Astonishing'

Captain Babcock Says He Has Faith in Allied Victory.

By CELESTINE SIBLEY.

The steps the United States took to keep out of this war will look "pretty astonishing" to the history student reading about them a generation hence, but "our sons and grandsons never can accuse us of warmongering," Captain J. V. Babcock, U. S. N., commandant of Naval ROTC at Georgia Tech, told members of the Civitan Club at their luncheon yesterday.

Declaring "it is a bad year for prophets," Captain Babcock steered clear of predictions on the outcome of the war except to express faith in an Allied victory "when we get our men and materials at the right place at the right time."

But he sketched with adroitness and humor the picture "that great incoherent, confused ruler of democracy, public opinion," presented in trying to keep the United States out of the war.

Various U. S. Steps. "First," he said, "we passed that astonishing piece of legislation, the neutrality act. That's going to look pretty funny in the history books. We were determined to stay out of this war and even our President said it would never again be necessary for our boys to fight on foreign shores."

When neutrality no longer seemed assured, Americans went next to the "cash and carry" system, Captain Babcock said, and after that progressed to establishing a 300-mile zone around American shores and "asking, not telling, the warring nations to keep out."

The lend-lease bill, which the naval officer described as "something like lending and leasing to poor relations," followed and after that came the Atlantic Charter—"and we were back where we used to be," declared Captain Babcock.

Then Pearl Harbor. "Then came Pearl Harbor and the die was cast," concluded the speaker.

Captain Babcock, who went to Europe as aide to Admiral Sims before the United States got into the war in the spring of 1917 on a special mission for Woodrow Wilson, said the picture then "was far blacker than it is today."

He described the fighting on the western front and the tremendous losses suffered by both sides and the sudden, almost frightful devastation of the German morale.

"We couldn't believe our ears or our eyes when we heard of the best disciplined soldiers and sailors in the world going to pieces. It was incredible the men on those fine battleships could be so weak."

I don't say that is going to happen this time because I don't know. But if there is anything to prayer you might include that in your evening prayers today."

Possible Exonerations. Captain Babcock said he also would "wait for the history books" to comment on the conduct of Kimmel and Short at Pearl Harbor, confident that when the truth is known the two officers will be exonerated.

In the meantime, he said, he was perfectly willing to go along with the idea of putting the blame on them "because that's one of the things military men are paid for—to take the blame when something goes wrong. It's always the men in the Army and Navy and never the politicians that are wrong—that's one thing you pay us for."

Professor Floyd Field, dean of men at Georgia Tech, introduced Captain Babcock at the luncheon.

Coldest February Since 1905

So you think it has been unusually cold for Georgia this winter. Well, the records prove you are right.

Those kept by the Atlanta Weather Bureau show the average temperature over the state last month was the lowest for any February since 1905, the bureau found the Georgia normal for February has been 48.6 degrees during the last half century. Although the figures for last month are still incomplete, the average is expected to be very close to 43 degrees.

'Arsenic and Old Lace,' Comedy At Erlanger, Wins High Praise

By LEE ROGERS.

Murder in "Arsenic and Old Lace"—like insanity in its Brewster family—doesn't just run, it practically gallops.

And the jockeys are two sweet old maids, who take pleasure in putting old men out of their misery, and their slightly mad nephew, who takes a certain aesthetic pleasure in his murdering.

Under the production of Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse, Joseph Kesselring's murder play has turned into one of the most delightful comedies of recent Broadway seasons with refreshing original twists. With excellent material to work with, a thoroughly competent road company cast headed by Laura Hope Crews and Eric Von Stroheim played the lines for the first time in comedy at the Erlanger theater last night. It will be repeated again this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and tonight at 8:30.

Funny Side of Murder. "Arsenic and Old Lace" presents the comic side of murder, selecting as its seat of crime the Victorian atmosphere of the home of two spinster sisters, located adjacent to a cemetery and a church. Pretty quickly the audience gathers all is not what it seems as the sisters disclose an affection for poisoning old men guests at their "rooming house" with a dose of arsenic in elderberry wine—wine because with tea "it makes a horrible smell."

Miss Crews, as Abby Brewster, dominates the play with her excitement over anticipated victims, their funerals and the final disposal of their bodies in the "Panna-ma canal," dug in the basement by another mental case nephew, who imagines himself Teddy Roosevelt. Forrest Orr, as Teddy, never failed to draw the laughs with his ascents of the stairs. He fashioned the San Juan hill as he ran up bellowing "Charge."

But Miss Crews as "Abby" is very put out when her secret of murder is disclosed and she can't convince anyone there are 13 bodies buried in the basement. "You don't think I'd stoop to telling a fib?" she asks.

Non-Garnishment Upheld by Court

State supreme court held yesterday the salary of an employee of trustees appointed by a federal court could not be garnished.

Pointing out the salary of a state employee is not subject to garnishment, on the principle of noninterference with proper administration of governmental institutions, the justices said this applies with equal force to employees of federally appointed trustees.

To permit it, they added, could disrupt business being carried on under the supervision of the court. The decision sustained the Bibb (Macon) superior court in dismissing an action instituted by the City Bank and Trust Company against J. W. Crawford to collect on a note it held.

CAUGHT IN THE ACT!—The old monster himself, Erich von Stroheim, the smircher of such sacred things as womanhood and a free press, meekly held the yarn last night while his pretty French secretary proceeded with an Army sweater she is knitting. In a dressing room down the hall, Atlanta's fluttry "Aunt Pittypat" of GWTW fame, Laura Hope Crews, listened to H. V. Kaltenborn and prettied up for her role as a gentle old poisoner in "Arsenic and Old Lace."

Girl Reporter Surprised to Find Erich Von Stroheim Is Nice Guy

By CELESTINE SIBLEY.

He'll be simply mortified when he hears this, but Erich von Stroheim, the sadistic old monster who used to put a monocle in his eye and pursue the Gish girls to a Fate Worse Than Death in the old silent films and who is currently dispensing arsenic at the Erlanger, is a nice guy.

He insults the press, he sneers at old ladies and leers at young ones and he insists—for publicity purposes—that he is a Nazi spy up to no good but there's an ugly rumor afloat that he's a solid, respectable American citizen and a darned good actor!

"I eat little babies' fingers!" the chucked Von Stroheim, baring his teeth fiendishly last night. "Before breakfast I eat those on the left hand—and after breakfast I eat those on the right hand. With plenty of Worcestershire and A-1 sauce, you understand!"

Greeted With Snarl. You do understand because a little earlier in a mild, female voice you have called Von Stroheim's rooms and asked for permission to interview him. Instead of the voice of the suave, polished actor-director-writer-soldier the advance publicity mentioned, you are greeted with a snarl. You present your request timidly but politely and a guttural voice replies: "I am in bed asleep!"

And there is the unmistakable sound of a telephone receiver landing on the hook with force. "That's the kind of man I am!" proclaimed the male star of "Arsenic and Old Lace" in his dressing room last night. "I insult people, especially newspaper people. Oh, I'm a beast!"

As the beast talks, his pretty, honey-haired secretary, Denise Eveillard Vernac, lately of the French films, shows her dimples and shakes her head in amusement. She is knitting a sweater for an American soldier, and her boss, who served in the American Army three years, has been caught at the graceful occupation of helping her unsnarl her yarn.

Misunderstood. Von Stroheim, whose shaved bullet head loomed menacingly over the top in the helmet of a ruthless Prussian officer in many of the post-war films, admitted there was a time when he was inclined to let people think he was a decent citizen. But he was misunderstood. An interviewer to whom he had bared his innermost

"But it's not quite the song for a lady," she put in primly last night, adjusting her violet-decked hat and snapping her reticule.

Miss Crews, who has been in the poison racket now for more than a year, thinks nostalgically of "Gone With the Wind" and is looking forward tonight to seeing Margaret Mitchell.

$125,000,000,000 Debt Limit Is Voted by House

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP)—The house unanimously approved a $60,000,000,000 boost in the statutory debt limit today while its Ways and Means Committee, continuing hearings on a new $7,000,000,000 tax program, heard a suggestion for a retail sales tax.

N.Y. Taxpayers Voted a Saving Of $40,000,000

Cut on Imposts on Personal Income Is Given Approval.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 10.—(AP)—New York's legislature voted today a two-year $40,000,000 saving for state taxpayers by a 25 per cent cut in the levy on 1941 and 1942 personal incomes and adopted a $376,000,000 state budget, $10,000,000 less than the current plan.

The program went to Democratic Governor Herbert H. Lehman, who proposed the tax reduction for expected swift approval simultaneous with a bill permitting immediate quarterly payment of the state income tax due April 15. Payments are now required in three installments.

The tax saving will be in addition to an expected $21,000,000 annual reduction in taxpayers' payments through elimination this year, also proposed by the Governor, of the 1 per cent emergency income effective since 1933.

The legislature's Republican majority maintained their reductions in the Governor's budget four successive years made the savings possible.

Without Painful Backache

Many suffer relief from backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help meet people's needs about 3 p.m. a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisons to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headache and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passage with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisons waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

You Can Still Get New MONCRIEF HOME HEATING

Although WPB order L-31 stopped the sale of gas furnaces February 28th, coal heating equipment is still available to assure you of a warm and comfortable home for the duration of the war.

You can still replace your old furnace with a new Moncrief Coal Furnace or get clean automatic heat by installing a fuel-saving stoker. If your present furnace is old or does not heat properly, it should be checked for repairs or replacements while materials are still available. A modern Moncrief Furnace circulating clean warm air will reduce your fuel cost and give ample heat throughout the house. You can buy now for immediate delivery or for spring installation on Moncrief's lay-away plan. All you need is a small down payment, balance in 18 months. Be assured of maximum war economy by having Moncrief put your heating plant in condition to last for the duration. Call today!

Mabel Disrupts Production in News Room

Affable Chimpanzee Makes Friends With Constitution Staffers.

By DUDLEY GLASS.

Mabel—surname not revealed—paid The Constitution newsmen a call yesterday and caused more interference with production than Ann Sheridan would have caused—perhaps. Mabel is not exactly beautiful but she has something.

Mabel, adopted child of Ruth Bible, of the Pan-American circus, is a three-year-old black-faced chimpanzee from Africa. Mrs. Bible obtained her from "Bring 'Em Back Alive" Frank Buck and trained her. Though Mabel has been in America only three months she has learned to skate, ride a tricycle and eat with fork and spoon. She has only recently taken up typing.

Wear Size 8.

As for statistics, Mabel weighs 46 pounds without her street costume of red sweater and brown corduroy overalls, with hood. They came out of stock—eight-year child size. Except the sleeves are a bit short. Mabel's arms almost touch the ground when she stands erect. She is 36 inches tall—just a child.

Mabel entered more enthusiastically into the spirit of things than did a performing bear who paid a call a month ago and Sabu's elephant, a later visitor. Both seemed rather bored. But not Mabel.

Tugs at Mr. Clarke.

Her chief delight was a tug of war with Sam Clarke, financial editor. Sam is no heavy-weight but a good bit heavier than his adversary. Mabel, using both hands and standing on a desk, gave Mr. Clarke plenty of tug, almost dragging him off his feet.

She drank a soft drink from a bottle, pecked at a typewriter, insisted on embracing all female members of the staff, with especial devotion to Carolyn McKenzie. Then she put on her coat, with some assistance, and departed. The staff went back to work, trying to remember where it had left off.

Mabel will be one of the treats for the children—and grown-ups—at the indoor circus to be presented by the Atlanta Woman's Club at the auditorium tonight, to run through March 17. The show presents trained horses and dogs and a number of big-time circus acts. The club hopes to raise a substantial sum for its defense, civic and charity work.

TSK-TSK, GIRLS!—Mabel, the belle of the Pan-American circus, gave Carolyn McKenzie, the belle of The Constitution photo department, a sisterly smack when they met in the news room yesterday. Camera mugging, the bane of a photographer's existence, is now surpassed only by chimpanzee mugging, somebody might get the tactful McKenzie to admit. The circus opens at 8 o'clock tonight in the municipal auditorium.

Allied Convoy Arrives Safely In British Port

Appendicitis Operation, Brush With U-Boats Enliven Trip.

LONDON, March 10.—(AP)—A convoy carrying United States technicians for the bases in North Ireland, reinforcements for the Canadian army in Britain, and Canadian-trained troops of Norwegian, Belgian and Polish armed forces has arrived at a British port.

Incidents to enliven the crossing were a brush with U-boats and an emergency operation for appendicitis. Depth charges dropped from escorting destroyers apparently disposed of the submarines since there were no further alarms. A Canadian airman was the victim of an appendicitis attack and the operation was performed by a Toronto surgeon.

A number of Canadian nurses were aboard the transports along with the fighting men, who were in uniforms representing infantry, ordnance, engineers, artillery, forestry and medical and dental units.

Nelson Warns War Output Must Increase

Says Production Can Be Doubled With Present Machinery.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP)—Donald M. Nelson declared tonight that this country's output of military supplies could be doubled if all existing war production machinery were used 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Unless production is brought to victorious levels, the War Production Board chairman warned in an address to the nation, neither management nor labor "could survive the public wrath should that wrath be turned against them; nor could we here on the War Production Board."

Nelson said he had become convinced of the depth of the public demand for all-out production from a flood of telegrams and letters received after his broadcast last week demanding a 25 per cent production upturn. Tonight's second address was prepared for broadcast over the Mutual network.

The production chief mentioned two days of arriving at the necessary production level "the American way" and "the way of bondage, of force."

"When I say we can increase production substantially by greater use of existing machinery," the WPB chairman said, "I am thinking of the 20 per cent of war plants operating only 5 or 5 1-2 days a week. I am thinking of the many plants closed Sundays. I have in mind the second shifts using only 40 per cent of plant capacity and the third shifts using only 20 per cent."

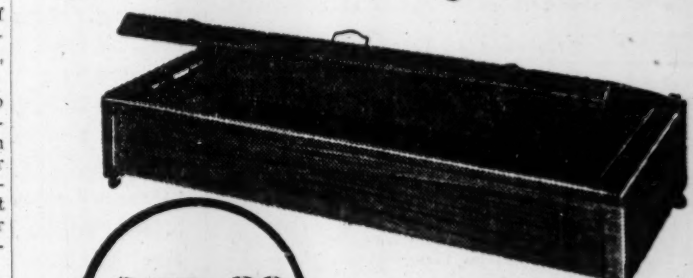

"This, as you can readily understand, means that thousands of machines needed for war production now stand idle part or all of every weekday and from 8 to 16 hours every day. And I might add, idle tools work for Hitler."

Nelson named as two industries having considerable unusual facilities the 31 aircraft engine and propeller plants and the 153 plants manufacturing machine tools.

Torpedo Sinks Brazilian Ship; 59 Are Missing

South American Country Loses Fourth Vessel in 21 Days.

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP)—The torpedo-sinking of the Brazilian cargo-passenger liner Cayru, the fourth Brazilian ship sunk in 21 days, was announced tonight by the Third Naval District following the arrival here of 26 survivors. Fifty-nine others are missing in three lifeboats.

The Navy said the 5,152-ton liner was sunk between 7 and 7:30 p. m. (E. W. T.) Sunday night about 130 miles off Ambrose light at the entrance to New York harbor.

The survivors included 22 seamen and four passengers. Six other passengers and 53 crew members are missing.

Brazil's tonnage loss rose to 22,231 gross tons with the sinking—a serious inroad in the marine life-lines between the United States and Brazil.

Ship Breaks in Two.
The Navy said the first torpedo, coming without warning, struck the bow of the Cayru and failed to explode. The second struck amidships and the ship broke in two and began to sink at once.

All passengers and crewmen got off in four boats, but a howling gale soon separated the boats. A United Nations ship rescued the survivors landed today after they spent 15 1/2 hours in the pitching lifeboat.

Four American-born naturalized citizens of Brazil were saved. They were Mrs. Willie de Sousa, her 15-year-old daughter June and Mr. and Mrs. Otto Jaegers. They were taken to Ellis island. Mrs. de Sousa was the former Willie Sanders, of Bedford, Va.

The Navy said the submarine surfaced, and its commander, speaking in broken English that resembled German, asked the Cayru's captain the name of his ship and its destination.

Captain Missing.
The captain, who is missing, was in a lifeboat with a motor but rough waves put the motor out of commission, the Navy said.

The Cayru was formerly the American freighter Scanmail of the Moore-McCormack Line. She was sold to the government-owned Lloyd Brasileiro Line in December of 1939 after making several hazardous trips through the Baltic war zone.

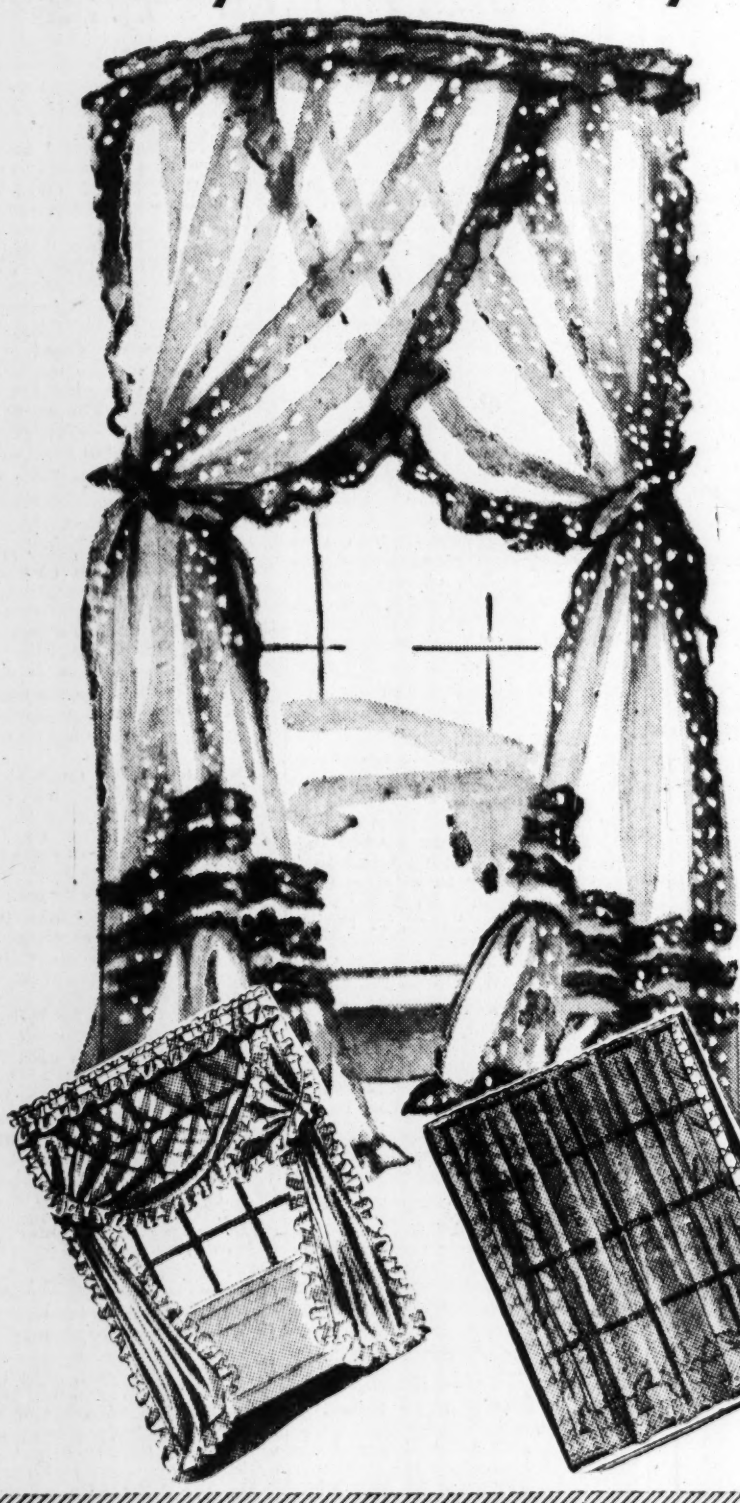

Other Brazilian ships sunk are the Buarque, February 15, off Cape Henry, Va., one killed; the Olinda, February 18, on the east coast and the Arabutan, February 7, off Newport News, Va., one killed.

Nonbelligerent Brazil protested to Germany the first two sinkings.

Total Mobilization

A nationwide poll by the Gallup Poll, just completed, asked this question:

"After finding out what each person can do, should the government have the power to tell each citizen what to do as his part in the war effort and require him or her to do it?"

The average reply to that question, for every section, every state, was, "Yes, 61 per cent; no, 32 per cent; undecided, 7 per cent."

If the undecided are eliminated, it will show that two out of every three persons queried are in favor of such total mobilization. The percentages of those with opinions are "Yes, 65 per cent; no, 35 per cent."

For the first time in the history of the world we are experiencing total war. We may have thought, in that first World War of a quarter century ago, that we knew what total war was. Today we understand our error, then.

For today it is absolute, total war, involving directly every man, woman and child in the belligerent nations. There are few nations left in the world which are not belligerent.

The outcome of the fight depends just as much upon the speed and the manner in which John Smith in a defense factory in Michigan turns out the particular item of equipment he is making, as it depends upon Tom Brown, the soldier in uniform who uses that equipment on the field of battle.

All are soldiers in the same, the nation's cause. Slackerism by one is as much a blow at the nation as it is by the other. The worker who deserts his bench is as much a traitor as the soldier who abandons his post.

There has come, in recent weeks, a national realization that there is far less complacency among the civilian population than there is among the congressional and administrative leaders at Washington. No longer is there need to bemoan the apathy of the general public. The general public is wide awake to everything involved, to full realization of what must be done. It is that same public which is worrying today about an appearance of too much complacency, too much hesitancy about attaining a total war status, in Washington.

As is generally the case upon all important issues, the country is far ahead of congress. And the country is impatiently waiting for congress to catch up.

The response to the question, given above, asked in the Gallup Poll, reveals that the people of the nation have no fear about any loss of individual rights. On the other hand, they realize that, for victory, there must be temporary sacrifice of many rights which they would struggle to retain in times of peace.

We are all soldiers. Soldiers are subject to order by their superior officers. We, the people, are ready and anxious to be placed in the same status. All we ask is, the orders.

In the dictator countries the workers and the general populace have been compelled to submit to drastic regimentation of their lives.

In America the people are ready, voluntarily, to accept whatever orders are given them. They know this form of control of the population—the soldiers in this total war—is necessary before victory can be won.

The American people are more than ready, they are willing and eager, to accept any sort of control over their lives which will help to win the war.

Congress and the administration should realize this. There is this tremendous source of human power, 130,000,000 strong, asking, eager to be used. All that is needed is strong, confident and wise leadership to put it fully to the task for victory!

Not Enough Doctors

Demands of the armed forces have created a severe shortage in the number of doctors available for civilians. Even then there are not sufficient medical men to fully care for the Army, Navy and other men in uniform.

It, therefore, behooves every one of us to co-operate in conservation of the time, capacity and strength of the doctors we have remaining. Like other normal commodities, doctor-service is short and should be rationed. But the only way in which doctors may be rationed is by individual understanding of the problem and fullest individual co-operation.

Dr. Julian L. Rawls, of Norfolk, Va., speaking under the auspices of the Fulton County Medical Society, drew forceful attention to this situation and suggested various means by which the general public can aid in conservation of the remaining physicians.

In the first place, suggested Dr. Rawls, never call a physician to your home if you are able to call at his office for consultation or treatment. A doctor, he said, can attend to five patients in his own office in the time required for the average home visit.

Secondly, never call the doctor at night except in case of real emergency. Three of every four calls made at night, said Dr. Rawls, are not necessary. There would be no injury to the patient by waiting until morning.

Soon, estimated Dr. Rawls, there will be only one physician for each 1,500 persons. In rural sectors this average may drop as low as one to 2,500. Unselfish co-operation is absolutely essential if these few doctors are to be able to care for the needs of the entire civilian population in anything like adequate manner.

Rush That Road!

News that the completion of an overland road to Alaska has been approved is heartening. The only trouble is that the road should have been started a year ago and that the mechanics of recommendation and approval have taken such a long time.

Now that the road is cleared for construction this country and Canada must make certain there is no further artificial delay in its completion. Even at that, it may be too late.

The Japanese have not waited for any nation to "get set" in the Pacific, and despite their involvement to the south there is no assurance they will not strike northward once they believe the situation developing beyond their control. Despite the fact they have extended their supply lines to abnormal lengths, the fact remains they have planned so well they have not yet stumbled. And their strength is far from being dissipated—their reserves of troops are great, their merchant marine still strong, their navy ample for further operations.

So, the road must go through. It should be a job to which every road building resource of this country and Canada is brought into service. The hundreds of highway contractors in this country should be drafted with their equipment to the extent that facilities are available and the project handled in such a manner the road will go through in the absolute minimum of time.

—WORK FOR VICTORY!—

They Serve

On Thursday of this week the Girl Scouts of America celebrate the 30th anniversary of the founding of their organization. In Atlanta and Georgia, as throughout the nation, Girl Scout troops will stage special programs that day.

It is to be doubted if any organization, not excepting, even, the parallel Boy Scouts, has done better work for its members than the Girl Scouts. Girls between 13 and 15 years of age have learned, in their scouting activities, the basic requirements for good citizenship. In that learning they have included, in the past, all those things which help womanhood to make herself a better helpmeet, a better inspiration and a finer creator for a better nation.

Today, in time of total war, the Girl Scouts are learning abilities that will be of highest value to their entire communities in possible emergencies which may arise. These girls, the young women of tomorrow, are being taught the fundamentals of life and service which the young womanhood of a war-stricken world will need to know to carry on through the long years of effort, before and after victory.

We cannot value the work of the Girl Scouts and their leaders too highly. It is of such service that the victory of tomorrow will have to be carved, if it is to be achieved at all.

Georgia Editors Say:

MAKING RUBBER CLOSER HOME
(From The Moultrie Observer.)

We will try the experiment of making rubber from American weeds, and we will make rubber by the synthetic process. While these new experiments are being made, we will be planning for a future supply of real rubber from South America and probably in some of our island possessions. It is not a matter of experimentation in South America. We know that it was in that continent that rubber was first found and utilized. It will require development of the industry, and this will take time and cost money. Brazil is negotiating with the American government for a joint rubber development project of mammoth size, and Washington appears to be willing. Such a project would not only make our rubber requirements secure in the future, but might serve to forge a new line of trade and friendship between South America. Why haul rubber all the way across the Pacific, even if it becomes available in the Far East again?

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

CHURCHILL SECURE WASHINGTON, March 10.—Later information from responsible sources, both here and abroad, tends to discount recent press dispatches out of London predicting an early upheaval in the British government, with Sir Stafford Cripps slated to succeed Mr. Churchill as prime minister during the next three months.

Two explanations for the stories would have received anything near the attention they did in the United States had they come from sources other than the Associated Press. The fact that they were moved by the London bureau of the news agency under the byline of one of its better known war correspondents—Drew Middleton—provoked widespread comment and a certain amount of official concern over the course of political events in England.

Only a short time before Mr. Churchill had just won an overwhelming vote of confidence in parliament. He was a bit startling for officials here to be told that he was on his way out. The personal relationship built up between him and President Roosevelt during their two meetings of the past six months made the situation somewhat incongruous. Also, the deep impression made by the British Prime Minister on congress and the American people generally on the occasion of his month's visit over Christmas caused the stories to be more difficult to understand.

Two explanations are now offered of the dispatches. One is that they reflected a source of criticism that existed before the Prime Minister yielded to demands for the reorganization of his cabinet and discarded some of the "extinct volcanoes" he had inherited as a condition to the premiership at the time he succeeded the late Neville Chamberlain. All of that came about two weeks ago.

Another is that the prophecy of his early downfall, attributed to responsible but unnamed sources may have come from unfriendly hands.

CORRESPONDENT MISLED? It is easy to see how a foreign correspondent might be misled in giving undue emphasis to a source of political information. The same thing might be true in reverse, for example, if a British correspondent here relied on someone like Senator Wheeler to give a balanced appraisal of American political conditions in relation to isolationist sentiment in the forthcoming congressional elections.

The AP correspondent may have fallen into this error as regards the source of his information that Mr. Churchill is on his way out.

In any event, later comment out of London on the Churchill prophecy describes the report as "an entertaining story, as entertaining to the supposed conspirators (against Mr. Churchill) as to the victims." That is the way the Manchester Guardian correspondent of the Baltimore Sun, James Bone, puts it. Informed British circles in Washington look on it in the same light.

ONE OF GREATEST Mr. Churchill bids fair to go down in history as one of Great Britain's greatest prime ministers. Not only was he right in foreseeing the calamity that has been brought on the world by the rise of Nazi military power, which he sought to have the democracies take measures against for years before Munich, but he more than anyone else, is credited with galvanizing the British people into action after the fall of France. He did so by the sheer magic of his oratory, weaving the country into a solid mass of resistance against threatened invasion.

A weaker man might have seen hopelessness in the situation and led the nation to accept negotiated peace, after being confronted with the task of holding off the Nazis alone. The fighting qualities he showed during those dark days endeared him to the British people in a degree not attained by any public official of his times. Nevertheless, as the speculative stories on his predicted downfall fall pointed out, it is not beyond the realm of possibility that future war reverses may affect his popularity. The old axiom about nothing succeeding like success is no less true than another about failure begetting disappointment.

BASIS OF CRITICISM A continuation of the recent reverses suffered by the British might easily prove Mr. Churchill's undoing, despite his past great personal popularity. They are the basis of the recent wave of criticism against his government—the setback in Libya, fall of Hongkong, loss of the Republic and the Prince of Wales, the fall of Singapore, and the escape of important units of the German fleet which had been bottled up at Breck.

Here is an accumulation of reverses, some of the highest military importance, that might have been sufficient to wreck the government of a less forceful Prime Minister. Under the British system, of course, it is possible to precipitate a change any day—simply by withholding a vote of confidence in the house of commons.

By the same token, a similar chain of reverses to our forces in the war might work against the Roosevelt administration to the extent that the Democrats could lose the lower house in the forthcoming November congressional elections.

HUMAN NATURE Human nature is that way. The public demands victories in one manner or another. But there is a lack of supporting evidence that Mr. Churchill is in any present danger of losing his hold on the British government. Later events may change the picture, but all informed sources here discount any suggestion that he is on his way out.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

The Height
Of Foolishness.

I have read somewhere, must have been in a news story, that some silly organization has proposed the removal of the Japanese out of defense zones in California.

Something to do, as I recall, with the removal of the Japanese out of defense zones in California.

Those same Japs, by the way, have carefully bought up all the land they could—for farming purposes, of course—adjacent to our flying fields, defense plants, suitable coastal areas for invasion, etc., etc. And now this silly organization comes to bat and says we are depriving these poor Japs of their civil liberties if we don't remove them to safer areas in the interior. Safer, by the way, for them as well as for us.

It is unbelievable the lengths to which some of our silly sisters will go. Don't they know we are at war with Japan? Are they anxious to help the Japanese invade this country and do to us what they have been doing to helpless Chinese prisoners of war? Tying them and using them living, as targets for bayonet practice.

I find I've used the adjective "silly" rather freely in the above paragraphs. It is an inane sort of adjective. Old maidish. But in my present frame of mind, regarding these, er, silly defenders of Japanese civil liberties in America, it is the only one I can find, unless I resort to profanity.

We Have Been Warned.

In case you think a Japanese in this country can be fully trusted, just because he was born here, let me draw your attention to a communication which appeared in the issue of Liberty magazine for December 23, 1939. Yes, 1939. We were warned as long ago as that.

Here is the communication published in Liberty more than two years ago.

Portland, Ore.—A letter from H. V. LaBombard on the Japanese in Hawaii (October 21, 1939) holds a very true statement when the writer says, "Every child born in Hawaii of Japanese parents is a subject of the Emperor of Japan."

For thirteen years I worked in the office of a physician in Oregon. Five and one-half years of that time we handled various nationalities of whom many were Japanese families. Whenever a child was born in one of these Japanese families, we would be constantly urged to get the child's certificate off to Tokyo immediately.

We frequently asked, "Is this child not an American citizen, and why the rush to send the certificate to Japan?" The reply always was, "He is a Japanese citizen first and American second."

—M. A. T.

It Is Matter
Of Life and Death.

This matter of placing all Japanese, and Germans and Italians, they can do us no damage, whether they wish to or not, is not a thorn to debate, to make the issue of legal technicalities. It is a matter of life and death. Life and death for you and your neighbors, for your sons and brothers and fathers fighting for us.

It is a matter on which may well hinge the decision of the war, whether we are to save our liberty and our own way of life, or whether we are to become nothing more than slaves to Nazi and Nippon masters—and owners.

If any individual Jap in California is innocent of wrong intent, if he is truly loyal to America, it will do him no harm to be removed to a safe place in the interior. In fact, if he is loyal, he will want to be removed so that he will be safe from both temptation and suspicion.

But, when that same Jap has bought property adjacent to vital war centers of ours, he cannot fail to come under suspicion.

He should be removed for his own safety, as well as for ours. For, if the Japanese invaders do come to our coast, what will be the position of any Japs in the area they attack? Why, they will quite naturally come under the direct suspicion of our own people. They will be, quite probably, some promiscuous shooting. The Jap, even the loyal Jap, who remains in a vital area will be fortunate if he escapes with his life when the war intensifies grows greater, whether his Nipponese pals invade or attack our coasts or not.

No, the folks who would make a legal issue of the removal of Japs from vital war areas, of any

Just One
Actor Pal

I can call by his first name (or last name either, for that matter) and I've never seen him on the screen.

This specific actor is Tim McCoy, and if you also have never seen him, it's because you go to the wrong kind of movies. You should go to a few rootin'-tootin'-old-fashioned westerns. You'd see him then.

I happen to know Tim because he's a good old boy from Wyoming. We met last summer at the rodeo in Cheyenne, we had a good time together, he gave me his private Hollywood number, and he said, "Next time, you're in, I'll pump you up." The old stuff, you know.

Except I did call him up, which was heresy in the first place. And Tim was glad to hear from me, which was a little unusual in a second place. Hollywood is indeed a strange land.

It wound up that I went out to Tim's apartment for dinner, and I must be degenerating into a very poor reporter. For, instead of pumping Tim all about the movies and himself, we spent the evening talking about the international situation. I might as well have stayed home.

Tim came to Hollywood 20 years ago to herd a bunch of Wyoming Indians in a picture. The Hollywood big shots liked him so well they kept him. They even sent him and his Indians to England and France for a year.

Odd Sort Of Fellow

Tim is an odd sort of fellow in that he's never been in his blood. His roots are in Wyoming. He has a ranch there. He goes back there between pictures.

He has never felt that he really was settled in Hollywood. The only property he owns in the world is in Wyoming. He has always just lived in an apartment out here—16 years in the same one, in fact—yet he could pack up and clear out in one day.

Tim is either a backwoodsman or a Hollywood-hater. He likes being in the movies, it makes him an excellent living, and he moves with a gang of old-time movie people—such as Richard Barthelmess, Lewis Stone, Irvin S. Cobb, Lionel Barrymore and Ronald Colman.

In fact, he doesn't even look like a cowboy off the screen. He doesn't affect wild west gear, and he could pass for a lawyer or an aircraft executive. He doesn't talk cowboy talk or use movie slang. He's always discussing the international situation, damn him, and he knows practically as much about it as I do.

Tim's apartment is a sort of old-fashioned one of two rooms, plastered with pictures of his movie and Wyoming friends. He has a Chinese cook named Frank. We had fried chicken and mashed potatoes for dinner. Before he leaves, Frank pushes aside the dining room table, pulls something down off the wall, and there's Tim's bed.

Necessary Precautions

Like all movie people, you couldn't get Tim on the phone directly even if you knew his number. You have to leave your name, and then if it's okay he'll call you back. He always leaves his apartment the back way, and scales a concrete wall to where his car is parked.

Tim is what you might call middle-aged, but he's rugged and enthusiastic and as straight as a rod. His soldiering probably accounts for that. He spent many years in the cavalry, before and during the last war.

He has been a rancher, a soldier, an actor and a circus owner. If he doesn't stop thinking about the international situation he may wind up to be a statesman.

Tim is among the last of the old Tom Mix and Buck Jones generation of western stars. He can't croon. He makes eight pictures a year. I'll have to go see one of them sometime.

Lewis
Stone

After dinner, we got in Tim's car and went over to see Lewis Stone, the "Judge" Haney of the movies, you know. Stone is just as nice as I always thought he would be, although I didn't talk to him long, for he's head over heels in defense work.

He is in command of a regiment of the State Guard (corresponding to the Home Guard in England) and it keeps him busier than a bird dog. His title is lieutenant colonel. They were having their weekly drill meeting in the old Warner Brothers studio when I saw him.

The regiment is an evacuation outfit. Everybody in it, enlisted men and officers both, furnish their own station wagons and carry two stretchers. They'll be the ones to evacuate old and crippled people and children from bombed areas, if and when bombing comes. It isn't a movie regiment at all, although there are about a dozen movie people in it. Cesar Romero and Robert Young are both lieutenants in the outfit.

They were there and I saw them, but didn't touch them. If you're disappointed, I'll go back and touch them for you. To tell the truth, they looked like practically anybody else in their uniforms. Thus end my Hollywood experiences.

Twenty-five Years Ago Today.

From the news columns of Sunday, March 11, 1917:

"Shoot-on-sight policy may govern United States ships against submarines. Work of arming ships being rapidly pushed."

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

ENEMIES IN OUR MIDST "There is a rumor," said the little fellow with the bald head, "that submarines have made it unsafe to go on Savannah Beach or to live there."

"Not really," I said. "Any minute they expect to be shelled. It's dangerous."

I assured him it was not true. "I just heard," said an excited voice over the telephone, "that a mob formed in Savannah to lynch the captured crew of a German submarine. They had to tow the sub to Charleston."

"Madam," I said, "that rumor, in various forms, has been going around for months. It is not true."

"But I have a friend who lives down there and she wrote me she'd seen a person who saw it."

"Madam," I said, "it isn't true."

"You just don't know," she said. "You haven't been there."

"I hear," said the fat woman in the flowery dress, "that the Red Cross materials are not getting to England but are going to France and Germany is taking them."

"Madam," I said, "the Red Cross has receipts from England for the stuff it has sent. Clothing, bandages, knitted goods—they have been received and used."

"That's what they say," she said. "But I have a friend in New York who saw someone just back from England and they said—"

"Madam," I said, "it isn't true."

She glared at me and went away.

"I have just heard," said the businessman, "that the Army has taken over Miami Beach. They are getting ready to repel an attack. You can't go there any more."

"Sir," I said, "the facts are the Army Air Corps has taken over a few hotels in which to quarter men while attending a special training school. But the beach is open and there are dozens more hotels wanting business."

"I got it straight," he said. "My brother-in-law has a friend down there who wrote him—"

"Sir," I said, "it isn't true."

And so it goes. All these earnest, well-meaning people don't realize they are Hitler's helping hands. But they are. Anything which tends to spread fear, uncertainty, confusion, helps Hitler.

PRAIRIE FIRES Rumors, thoughtless, unfounded rumors, spreading out of another rumor or from some misunderstood statement, are doing this country a lot of harm.

A week ago Atlanta was swept by a rumor that gasoline would be unobtainable on the following Monday. No one knew from whence it came. It spread like a prairie fire. Excited persons jammed filling stations. They filled extra tanks. Some persons started work on having large tanks put in their garages and tried to buy in advance.

Came Monday. There was no shortage. There was plenty of gasoline.

The same thing happened in sugar. There still is sugar to be had in amounts satisfying the needs of all households.

Many such rumors are put out by agents of Japan and Germany. There are many of them in this country.

They are the ones who encourage rumors, who start them, who build on fear, who create confusion.

We all recall the stories from the Louisiana maneuvers, before we were in the war. A good many persons actually believed the rumors that hundreds of men had died of snake bite. Actually not a man died of snake bite and the record for injuries and deaths from all causes was most remarkably low. Much lower than had been anticipated.

The President himself referred to the rumor about shiploads of bodies being brought secretly from Hawaii. And that our fleet was destroyed. They were complete falsehoods. Yet it swept the country.

It is a curious commentary on us that we believe so many ridiculous things.

It is unusual how much we like to feel "on the inside," or to have some "secret, confidential" information. It seems to give a special sort of joy if the alleged "confidential news" is bad. Or alarming.

PROVERBS 15:2 I can recommend the reading of the Proverbs. Proverbs 15:2 seems to cover the problem completely:

"The tongue of the wise useth knowledge aright; but the mouth of the fool poureth out foolishness."

Things are going bad for us. But

Georgia Stops Enrollment of CCC Negroes

Fourth Corps Area Units for Colored Will Be Disbanded.

Discontinuance until further notice of enrollment of Negroes in the Civilian Conservation Corps in Georgia was ordered yesterday by federal headquarters, Charles A. Coffin, CCC supervisor of the State Welfare Department, announced.

He said the ban on enrollment of Negroes was placed in effect because several Negro camps in the Fourth Corps Area would be disbanded in line with the CCC policy of discontinuing camps not actively engaged in war work.

Two Negro camps in Georgia, at Waynesville and Royston, will be discontinued, Coffin said, and the enrollees, about 300, probably will be transferred to Camp Stewart or to some other CCC camp engaged in war activities.

Coffin said in a statement the prohibition on Negro enrollments would "be welcomed by the farmers of the state because of the acute shortage of farm labor."

The state quota for white enrollees for March is 935. The enrollment will be conducted today and sent to those who enlist will be sent to California, Washington and Oregon to aid in protecting forest resources.

Good Morning
By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

"THE TIME HAS COME..." General George C. Marshall, chief of staff, is quoted as having said a few days ago: "The time has now come when we must proceed with the business of the war to the enemy."

These words from General Marshall will find ready response in the hearts of our people. We are not in position to know whether we are prepared to take the offensive, but I believe our people would rejoice to know that we could, at last, strike and strike hard.

Ambassador Maxim Litvinoff, in an address before the Overseas Press Club in New York city a few nights ago, said: "The efforts which do not include common fighting may not be sufficient."

And Wendell Willkie, in an address on the Pacific coast, last week, said: "We must begin to think in terms of attack, not retreat; we should begin to act in terms of striking, not blocking. We will not win the war on the defensive. Those who win strike first..."

I have full confidence in the President, General Marshall, and the other trusted leaders of our nation, and I am certain that we must rely upon their wisdom in directing the armed forces, at home and abroad, on the land, on the sea, and in the air. Eager as I am, and as I believe every true American is, to take the offensive, we must rely upon our leaders to name the hour when we can confidently begin attacking.

Indeed, I cherish the belief that when we know the full story we shall find out that some of our far-flung forces are now taking

Bum Idea, After All
Some fine editorial comment has been made in the press in praise of the democracy of Winston Churchill, who on his visit to Washington, went to the locomotive and shook hands with the engineer.

It started me thinking, which is no easy task. Winston Churchill is a far bigger shot than I am. So, if he doesn't think it beneath him to shake hands with the engineer, why should I? I'll do it the very next time I take a train ride, if the engineer hasn't gone home and to bed before I can crawl over the baggage in the vestibule and walk the length of 17 pullmans to the engine.

But I pause for reflection. If I shake hands with the engineer why shouldn't every passenger? They're no better than I am—or not much.

Trains are carrying passengers again, especially since the rubber shortage. Hundreds of passengers. So perhaps the engineer would insist on charging time-and-a-half for overtime and loss of rest.

Turkish Police Raid Istanbul Nazi Club
ISTANBUL, March 9.—(Delayed)—(AP)—Neutral quarters reported today that Turkish police raided a German club in Istanbul last night, purportedly searching for information in connection with the bomb explosion February 24 near German ambassador Franz Von Papen.

An informed source said it was "not unlikely" that the Germans might have engineered the bombing, using young Communist elements as their tools in an effort to upset Russian-Turkish relations.

ATTITUDE OF ATLANTA DEMORALIZING STATE
Editor, Constitution: Everybody in our part of the state is wondering what is wrong with our capital city. Atlanta should set the pace, the good example, for the rest of the state, yet the people are squabbling over the big jobs and everybody wants to be somebody important. This is the way it seems to outsiders.

The Governor and the ex-Governor, are acting like two naughty little boys. They haven't helped to build a great state for us, as any Governor should do, but both have disgraced us and our state. For several years now Georgia's Governors have been laughing stocks all over our wonderful country.

Isn't there some way our people can be made to realize what a very serious crisis our nation is facing today? It's time to put away personal grudges and petty differences. We all must work together to work harder than any of us ever have before, if we want to win this war, and peace for the world. And unless we want to be plunged into eternal depression we must win this war!

The people of this state are ashamed of our leaders, and embarrassed for them; somebody has to do the small jobs and they are just as important to victory as the big jobs. We can't win a war unless we stand united—no one can win it alone! There's a job ahead for each and every citizen of this United States, and each one is just as important as the other. So, why quarrel and fuss over it?

I am very much afraid the truth will be realized too late, when Atlanta is receiving an awful deluge of bombs and maimed civilians. We can't beat at this if we wish, but it's quite possible unless we all stand together and work for our protection, for now and for always.

The attitude of the Atlanta people is demoralizing the rest of the state. We want a capital which we can look up to and respect and love. That much is due us.

MRS. J. D. GROGAN, Rockmart, Ga.

GLADLY WALK 12 MILES TO HELP WIN WAR.
Editor Constitution: George Moffett's letter in March 7 issue stated he thought salesmen should have retraced tires. I think that a very selfish attitude to take in a time like this, as he can ride buses and trains to get to his work.

My job forces me to live twelve miles from town where no buses or trains run, but if it will help the government win this war, I would gladly give them my car and walk.

Brazil Press Demands Reprisals Against Axis
RIO DE JANEIRO, March 10.—(AP)—Newspapers demanded today that the government take strong reprisals against the Axis for sinking of three Brazilian vessels.

An official announcement last night said that the government held Germany responsible for the torpedoing of two of the ships, the Buarque and the Olinda, and that an inquiry was being held to determine the nationality of the submarine which sank the third, the 7,878-ton Ararat.

Fire Hose Delivery Is Held Up by City
Delivery of 6,400 feet of fire hose bought by the city purchasing committee for use by the fire department was halted by city officials yesterday until charges that the Eureka Fire Hose Company offered Miami a rebate on a recent order have been cleared up.

According to the reports, the company is said to have bid $1.30 a foot for 5,000 feet sold to Miami and offered a $750 cash rebate to meet competitive bids. The price quoted Atlanta was $1.35 a foot.

Members of the city purchasing committee and Mayor LeCraw acted to hold up delivery of the Atlanta order pending an investigation of the matter. The Eureka bid was high, but Chief Styron recommended purchase of its product because it was multiple woven while other hose was double jacket.

Miami was reported to have turned down the alleged offer.

U. S. Favors All-Out Draft, 2 to 1
By GEORGE GALLUP, Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.
PRINCETON, N. J., March 10. By a decisive majority of nearly two to one the American people vote for total mobilization in the final complete returns of a survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion.

Total mobilization is favored in every geographical section, in all income groups, in cities, towns and on farms. The rank and file of both the Democratic party and the Republican party favor it. It wins majority support in every age group of the adult voting population. Everywhere, indeed, majority sentiment favors an all-out draft of the nation's men and women for war work—a program which would give the government power to conscript any citizen for any job that will help win the war, and require him to do it.

82 Per Cent Vote.
The survey shows, first, that 82 per cent of voters throughout the country favor a national registration by which the government can determine what each person not already in national service is qualified to do. Public opinion was then measured on the total mobilization issue itself with the following results:

The final national vote is:
YES 82%
NO 18%
UNDECIDED 7%

4 Points Emphasized.
If the undecided vote is eliminated in the tabulation, the vote of those with definite opinions would be:
Vote of Those With Opinions.
YES 65%
NO 35%

These results emphasize four things about public opinion and the war today.

1. The poll is striking evidence that the American people are ready and willing to accept voluntarily sacrifices and deprivations for war which the people in dictator countries were forced to accept whether they liked it or not.

2. The public is not particularly afraid of enormous centralization of power during the war emergency. The typical voter, the poll found, argues that such blanket power is essential to fight the kind of total war necessary to beat the Axis.

3. The number of voters who

favor total mobilization is nearly as large as the number who in 1940 voted for conscription for military service in a series of Institute surveys.

No Complacency.
4. The poll results suggest the morale problem in the United States is not public apathy or complacency, but rather how to get managerial action along the home-front that is drastic enough and tough enough to measure up to the public's own ideas as to what should be done.

The largest percentage in favor of total mobilization was found in the Rocky Mountain states, where 89 per cent of all persons polled voted for it. The Pacific coast states likewise show a high percentage in favor (83 per cent), as does the south (86 per cent).

The idea of total mobilization has more support among men than among women.

Episcopalians Will Hear Talk By David Covell
Council of Christian Social Relations Opens Today.
Dr. David Covell, of New York, executive secretary of the Army and Navy commission of the Provincial Council of Christian Social Relations of the Episcopal church, is scheduled to speak at the council's dinner at 6 o'clock tonight at All Saints' church. He will take the place of Bishop Arthur McKinstry, of Delaware, who cannot arrive in time.

The two-day council begins today, with sessions at the Biltmore hotel. Principal speaker at 11 o'clock will be the Rev. Clifford L. Samuelson, assistant secretary in the council's department of domestic missions. He will discuss "Problems of Rural America."

Dean Raimondo de Ovies has cancelled his usual night Lenten service at St. Philip's cathedral to permit members of his congregation to attend the council's sessions.

Other nationally known figures attending the council sessions are: The Rev. Almon Pepper, executive chairman for the department of Christian Social Relations; Miss Dorothy Stabler, chairman of box supply and Christian Social Relations for the women's auxiliary; Bishop Middleton S. Barnwell, diocese of Georgia, and Bishop Robert E. Gribben, western North Carolina. Bishop William Green, of Mississippi, chairman of the council, will preside at the sessions.

The Rev. Mr. Samuelson, 33, was formerly rector of St. Stephens church at Longview-Kelso, Wash., and afterward at St. Paul's, at Bellingham, Wash. He is considered an authority on the vast extended work of the Episcopal church in the rural regions of the United States.

NEW YORK LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY

97th Annual Statement to its Policyholders

The year 1942 finds this country in the throes of a war economy. All of the country's resources, all of its man power must be devoted primarily to the winning of the war if we are to preserve our institutions, our freedom, our independence. How does this obligation, which rests upon every one of us, affect a life insurance company and the responsibilities of management?

A year ago we said in our annual report: "The management of a life insurance company has a primary responsibility to its policyholders to invest the funds of the company and to conduct its affairs so that the company will be able promptly to meet all its contractual obligations to its policyholders and beneficiaries when they fall due." And we added: "The discharge of that responsibility carries with it a great opportunity for service to the public at large."

War, particularly so devastating and extensive a war as the present one, does not lessen in the slightest either this responsibility to protect the policyholders or the opportunity for service. On the contrary, because of the uncertainties and hazards—economic, social and individual—which are inevitably incident to such a war, these responsibilities and these opportunities are greater, not less.

The Company has lived through four wars in which the United States was involved—the Mexican War, the War Between the States, the Spanish-American War and the First World War. During each of these conflicts the Company continued to grow in usefulness and service, both to the policyholders and to the country. It safeguarded its assets, it met its obligations, and at the same time, when needed, it aided in the financing of those wars. We must do no less today.

Early in December, following the declaration of war, the Directors of the Company considered the Company's course of action in the light of war conditions. The course then determined was, we believe, a conservative one. The reserves against the Company's contractual obligations were further strengthened, its real estate and mortgage loan assets were reappraised on a strict basis, and the funds held for general contingencies were substantially increased. As a result, a smaller amount of divisible surplus was available for the payment of dividends for the year 1942.

This action has added materially to the fundamental strength of the Company and to the long-range protection of the policyholders themselves. This is important now that our country is engaged in a war which carries with it inevitable economic strains and future adjustments.

The Statement of Condition of the Company which accompanies this report continues to reflect great strength.

The year 1942 is a year for action, not words. In these circumstances this report is made as brief as possible.

A more complete report as of December 31, 1941, containing additional statistical and other information of interest about the Company, will be sent upon request. A list of the bonds and the guaranteed and preferred stocks owned by the Company is also available. These booklets may be obtained by writing to the New York Life Insurance Company, 51 Madison Avenue, New York, N. Y.

Defense Efforts In British Isles Met by Apathy

Medical Minister Reveals Reaction Similar to That in U. S.

By WILLARD COPE.
Even the people of the British Isles were apathetic toward civilian defense in the early days, yet survived to establish the most successful system known.

So the small, quiet and very Scottish man who has had charge of the emergency medical services, by which thousands of lives have been saved after air raids by methods well thought out in advance, is anything but doleful about America's response in the end to situations which may develop here.

This personage, Dr. James M. Mackintosh, a former professor at the University of Glasgow, chief medical officer of Scotland's health department, and Minister of Medicine of Great Britain, gave practical advice from his vast store of hard-won information to the medical officers of eight states in a conference here yesterday.

Touring Country.
Brought to this country by the Rockefeller Foundation, because of his air raid experiences in England and Scotland, Dr. Mackintosh is touring the country as a consultant, giving detailed procedures as well as general plans of operation.

"Your civilian protective system is built upon the air raid warden," he pointed out. "That man must consider himself the shepherd of his flock. He must look them up each day and know where they are when the raiders have struck. I will show you why that is so essential."

"Suppose there is a section of tenements blown in. When rescue forces come, the warden must be able to say how many were in the various rooms, what shelters the various people went to, why it is unnecessary to dig into the hopeless debris of a given segment—in other words, he must have all of the information which will permit the rescuers to devote their energies to life-saving, without dissipating it on useless or needless efforts."

Essential Information.
The four essential elements of information, in the order of their importance, are (1) where the damage was done, (2) its extent, (3) what streets of approach are blocked, and (4) the probable number of casualties.

"It is essential to tell headquarters how the scene can be reached, so as not to tie up equipment in impenetrable streets. Another important thing to bear in mind is not to call for too much equipment. It is better to call for too little. If more is needed, it can be sent for. But if too much is called for, it weakens your general defense system and needlessly bottlenecks your local efforts."

Fighting fire comes first, then rescue.

"This is because," Dr. Mackin-

tosh went on, "fire is a spreading menace and the quicker it is stopped the better. Rescue deals with what already has happened; stopping fire prevents further damage."

"It is the practice of conscientious wardens to keep a daily slate of his charges. He will have someone in the various homes or apartments leave a slate notation at night, saying how many persons are within. Genuine human interest in your neighbors and their safety is the first essential."

He recalled that when first efforts were made by the Home Ministry in 1936 to set up a defense system for the civil populace, there was a vast lack of interest and some outright opposition. But the outline of an organization was developed and made to function.

"It followed very closely the pattern of your own Office of Civilian Defense in Washington, with its regional, state and local ramifications," said the visitor. "It was a procedure within which it was possible to function when the demand was upon us at last in all its horrifying reality. It enabled us to get through the ghastly periods so many once had scoffed at."

Dr. George Baehr, chief OCD medical officer from Washington, who is in charge of organizing emergency medical services throughout this country, participated in the conference, called by Regional Director Charles H. Murchison. Monday evening he addressed the Southeastern Surgical Conference. A score of southeastern medical officers attended the conference.

the gaps between the services rendered by the Red Cross, the civilian defense groups in all communities and other various agencies and groups charged with the task of supplying the services so vital to the present grave situation. It is the plan for the WPA here to supplement the services of these various groups and agencies when called on to do so.

Filling Gaps.
"A substantial number of our trained administrative personnel already have been drafted by various other agencies which are devoted to war services and we now are training more men and women to fill the gaps here and in other organizations," Harman said.

Approximately 2,000 WPA workers throughout the state, he said, have received first aid training and other classes are being organized. First aid instructors will be supplied for classes in sections in which the Red Cross does not at this time have instructors available.

Agriculture and industry, Harman said, will have first call on all workers on the WPA rolls in Georgia.

"If there is a shortage of agricultural workers in any community in which WPA projects are being operated, these projects will be abandoned at the request of the proper local authorities and agricultural workers on the WPA rolls who do not accept proffered employment at the prevailing wage rate prevailing in the respective county will be stricken from the WPA rolls."

Helping Industries.
"We also are pledged to full co-operation with defense industries and are training men and women now on the WPA rolls to classify them as efficient workers in such industries. As this effort progresses, in line with the long established policy of WPA, only those who cannot for any reason be absorbed by agriculture or by private industry will remain on the WPA rolls."

"One of the primary requirements for workers in practically all types of defense industry is that they be able to read and write. We now have classes in all sections of the state where we are teaching persons to read and write. Many industries also demand their workers have a knowledge of shop arithmetic and the WPA has classes for teaching this subject in practically every community in which there are potential defense industry workers."

10 Hours' Training.
Other defense developments yesterday included a decision by the State Citizens' Defense Committee that ten hours' first aid training for an air warden is enough.

Red Cross manuals call for 20 hours of training, but because the air wardens have a number of

Danube Flood Threatens Rumania and Bulgaria

BERN, Switzerland, March 10. (AP)—Rising flood waters in the Danube threatened many cities and villages in northern Bulgaria and southern Rumania today, and already had left 2,000 persons homeless in Vadin, Bulgaria.

A dispatch from Sofia to the Milan newspaper Il Popolo d'Italia said the Rumanian city of Silistra was inundated and the surrounding country flooded over a five-mile stretch. The city of Lom, in Bulgaria, also was flooded, with the still-rising waters threatening to sweep away the dam.

Jobs and little time to devote to the treatment of bomb-maimed citizens in their area, the state committee decided that the 10-hour course prescribed in the OCD manual is sufficient.

The state committee, at its meeting yesterday, also decided to confine its activities at present to three objectives—the protection of citizens, nutrition and physical fitness.

The meeting agreed that concentration on these three activities "would eliminate a lot of confusion that has been connected with the civilian defense program."

Won't Branch Out.
The National Office of Civilian Defense, it was pointed out, "goes much farther into social welfare and all sorts of things, but the state committee will not branch out at this time."

Protection of civilians covers preparations for coping with disasters. The nutrition program, to be directed by the women's division, will emphasize victory gardens, better diets and greater food production.

Expense of $13,681 have been incurred in the first three months of the state program. It was announced. A tentative budget for the next three months calls for the expenditure of about $10,000.

The resignation of Charles L.

Bowden, of Macon, as chairman of the sixth congressional district, was announced. The committee approved the appointment of Hugh H. Hill, of Macon, the present vice chairman, as Bowden's successor. George Carpenter, of Milledgeville, was elected vice chairman of the district. Bowden will continue as vice chairman of the state committee.

Georgia has enrolled 254,262 civilians for defense work, it was announced. Every district has exceeded its quota, it was said, the minimum goal of 5 per cent of the population having amounted to only 156,193.

Newspapers and radio stations were thanked for "giving us marvelous co-operation."

Construction of auxiliary water systems where new systems may be needed.

Not Vague Plan.

"All this program," said Harman, "does not constitute merely some vague plans. The workers are trained to take over this work tonight—if bombs were to fall on Georgia."

For months, WPA workers have been trained to aid and bolster the work of the civilian defense workers over the state.

Units are mobilized in each community. Practice drills and practice work have been given the men and women who work on the government pay rolls.

One type of work that has been accomplished for the various civilian defense units in each county of Georgia has been the preparation of maps by WPA draughtsmen, showing the location of waterworks, public utilities or other vital spots that might suffer in a sudden air raid.

Copies of these maps have been forwarded to defense leaders in all counties and copies are being held by the WPA for their own workers when their services are needed.

Other jobs being handled by Georgia's WPA organization include:

Preparation of priority lists of valuable materials in museums, archival establishments, and public offices in defense areas. These materials are being listed for the purpose of removal to nondefense areas.

The WPA workers are being schooled to handle the jobs of air

Your Country—

My Country

This marvelous nation has prospered in the last 50 years to the extent that all foreign nations have looked with envy at our great strides in the production of aeroplanes, the telephone, radio, the automobile and hundreds of other marvelous improvements to make life worth living.

The average boy on leaving school to enter the world of trade has dreams of things he will accomplish. Those dreams of the younger generation have come true, and we, as a nation, have progressed beyond anything anticipated 50 years ago.

Who had the idea that the poor man could live 15 miles away from his work on a little farm or in a house where his children could see the trees, woods and nature's flowers and still arrive in the city in time for his day's labor.

Is all this to be destroyed? No—absolutely, no.

But, wait. They are gradually trying to divest the people of these improvements in the name of patriotism.

The constant attack on the use of rubber tires, if it succeeds in its purpose, will destroy the morale of the people and will close most of the stores on the main street of every city in this wonderful country of ours.

Wake up, people of America.

Atlantans Are Identified By Distinguishing Traits

By SALLY FORTH.
... PEOPLE YOU KNOW AND HOW THEY MAY BE IDENTIFIED:

If she's divinely slim, pretty and blase, she's Emmie Martin (Mrs. Robert) Chambers, who combines a busy social life with war work. If she's brunet, owns countless off-the-shoulder evening gowns, and does a rumba that would do credit to "Madame La Zouga," she's Jane Lawless, who has modeled in New York, wintered in Hollywood, and graced dozens of feature pages for Atlanta newspapers.

If he's tall, "trips the light fantastic" with ease and grace, and looks like a "collar ad," he's Dr. Jack Beckwith, of Lawson General hospital. If she's tiny, talkative, and waxes effervescent about flowers, she's Mrs. Bolling Sennett. If he's tall, handsome and witty, he's her husband, Bolling. If she's a wee slip of a girl with dreamy eyes and dark hair streaming around her shoulders, she's Joan Witt, a career girl you notice in any crowd.

If she looks like a Powers model, is never seen without earrings, and has dozens of hats, she's Fran Bourke, co-ed at the University of Michigan, who will marry Pete Tenney when she receives her diploma. If he's an imposing figure of a man, with a ready laugh and a reputation for being amusing company, he is Channing Cope. If she sings, draws sketches in charcoal, and is charmingly gracious, she's his wife, Athelene.

If he's tall and dark, eternally humorous, and constantly sought by hostesses with attractive young visitors, he's Jack Spalding, whose affiliation with the United Press recently took him to New York to reside. If she "dotes on" convertible cars, has a captivating tip-tilted nose, and thinks her husband is wonderful, she's Betty Yopp (Mrs. McKee) Nunnally.

If she's as "friendly as a kitten," has unruly red gold hair, and a picturesque white house on Rivers road, she's Anne Coppedge (Mrs. Julian) Carr. If she is a connoisseur of excellent cuisine, buys several pairs of gloves at one time, and is noted for her hospitality, she's Mrs. Rufus Dorsey. If she's pretty, works like a Trojan for the Junior League and the O.C.D., and has a finger in every social pie, she's Irene (Mrs. Green) Warren.

If she has a pleasing drawl, a flair for wearing clothes, and a talent for song writing, she's Mrs. Emily Robinson Head. If she's popular, vivacious, and a beauty contest winner, she's Gloria Gormley, whose dating nights never lack for company. If he's seldom without a tennis racket in his hand, is one of Atlanta's handsomest young fathers, and has a wife whose beauty commands admiration wherever she goes, he's Malon Courtie. If she's active in the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs and countless other clubs—civic, cultural and social—and if she has knitted so many sweaters for the Red Cross that she has lost count, she's Mrs. George Ripley.

If you would like one or more students from the Naval Air Base as your dinner guests next Sunday, don't forget to call Hemlock 1467 to make arrangements. And remember that today is the deadline!

... ERVA BLACKSTOCK is the proud possessor of a "distinguished service badge," awarded her in Nashville, Tenn., last week. As manager of the Baptist Book Store here, she went to Nashville to attend a conference that assembled managers of the Baptist book stores in 17 southern states and the personnel of the Boardman Press of Nashville.

And the badge, appropriately enough, was awarded because of her marked success with "Red Hills," Marel Brown's book of poems and prose that came off the press last summer. In presenting the award, the publisher announced: "In my long years with the Boardman Press, the outstanding best-seller has been 'Red Hills.' Miss Blackstock wins this badge for unusual success with 'Red Hills' in Georgia."

Then Erva was given five minutes in which to tell of her experiences with the book. And she mentioned particularly the excellent co-operation of the Atlanta press.

"Red Hills" is now in its fourth printing. When Erva and Marel went down to Bessie Tift two weeks ago on a speaking engagement, they took 60 copies along with them, and Marel autographed the entire lot for the college girls. And 60 was not enough. They have sent back for 10 more copies, all to be autographed.

... THAT FAMILIAR slogan, "unhappy is the bride who falls on," proved untrue when Betty Lou Bell became Mrs. Leon Hughes at a ceremony last Sunday. The rain fell in torrents, but the bride was radiantly happy when she ascended the aisle.

Betty's mother feared there would be empty pews in the Associate Reformed Presbyterian church when the hour for the wedding, 6 o'clock, arrived. But her misgivings were unnecessary, for when the wedding march pealed forth, the bridal party proceeded through a packed audience.

As fresh as a Watteau shepherdess came the bridesmaid, followed by Betty Lou's mother, who looked just as lovely as she did at her own wedding when, as Mattie Lou Richardson, she married Ernest Bell. Her gown was pale orchid, which she wore with a picture hat wreathed in real flowers, and tied with a bow of apple green satin ribbon with long streamers.

The four younger brothers of the bride, Lawson, Richard, Robert and Graham, were too young to take part in the ceremony, but they occupied the front row, beaming admiration

Change Announced For Spanish Class.

The Spanish classes being conducted by O. S. Bandy each Wednesday and Friday evening under the auspices of the AWVS, will be held in the auditorium at Washington Seminary beginning this evening. on their only sister, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Gaston Townley.

Heavy ivory satin fashioned the gown worn by the lovely bride. An armful of calla lilies, showered with lilies of the valley, completed the beautiful picture.

These lilies were sent especially for the wedding from Tampa and were featured in the altar decorations. Leon Hughes, brown as a berry from his year in service, was a handsome bridegroom, and when the smiling pair left the church, the sun burst forth with magnificent splendor on as happy a bride as ever the sun shone on.

Personals

Mrs. Robert F. Maddox departs today for St. Louis, Mo., to attend the marriage of her niece, Miss Eunice Holderness, to William R. Ridley, which will be a brilliant event of Saturday evening. The ceremony takes place at St. John Methodist church, and Mrs. Edward D. Smith Jr., of Atlanta, will serve as matron of honor for her cousin. Mr. Maddox and Mr. Smith leave on Friday for St. Louis to attend the auspicious event. Mrs. Walker Hill, the former Miss Adgate Ellis, of Atlanta, entertains at a breakfast for the bridal party and visitors the day of the wedding.

Mrs. Wilmer L. Moore has returned from Verona, N. J., where she visited her daughter, Mrs. Fred Fry. She was accompanied by her grandchildren, Frank Fry II, and Helen Fry.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McKinney have returned from Indian Rock, Fla., where they visited Mr. and Mrs. Alton F. Irby.

Mrs. Robin Brookshire has returned to her home in New Orleans, La., after having been the guest of her mother, Mrs. James B. Nevin, and her sister, Mrs. T. N. Bradshaw, at their home in the Ponce de Leon apartments.

Mrs. John W. Maddox and little daughter, Lee, of Rome, arrived yesterday to visit the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Brooks, on Peachtree Memorial drive.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jackson and sons, Henry Jackson and Edward Jackson, depart at an early date for Richmond, Va., where they will establish their future residence.

Miss Laura Hope Crews, of Hollywood, Cal., is spending several days at the Georgian Terrace. She has a host of friends here made when she attended the premiere of the picture, "Gone With the Wind," in which she played the role of Aunt Pitty Pat. Margaret Mitchell's famous book.

Dr. and Mrs. G. A. Holloway return Friday from Miami, Fla., where they are spending 10 days.

Captain and Mrs. H. C. Dorris, of Camp Bowie, Brownwood, Texas, spent Sunday in Atlanta en route to Fort Monroe, Va., where Captain Dorris will be on duty at the 159th Station Hospital.

B. and P. W. Club To Meet Tonight

Mrs. J. B. Stillman, regional director of Civilian Defense, will speak at the Business and Professional Women's Club's dinner meeting to be held at the Georgian Terrace Hotel this evening at 7 o'clock. Mrs. Stillman's subject will be "The Business and Professional Woman's Part in the War-Torn World of Today."

Other members of the club taking part on the program are Miss Leita Thompson, who will give an outline of the organization of the Business and Professional Women's Club, when and where. Dr. Maude Foster will make a talk on physical fitness, and its importance for defense purposes. Mrs. Helen Douglas Mankin will speak on "Woman's Part in the Legislative Hall."

Mrs. Stillman is a member of the North Carolina Federation of B&P Clubs, and is a forceful speaker. The program is sponsored by the public affairs committee, Mrs. Pearl Oastler, chairman. A musical program has been arranged, with Mrs. Ruth Knox directing, and Charles Thrash Jr., presenting accordion selections. Programs for the meeting were designed and made by Mrs. Frances Duncan. For reservations please call Mrs. Janice McKinney, Vernon 2917.

Mrs. Lyons Heads Victory Club.

Mrs. F. E. Lyons has been elected president of the Ormewood Victory Club, an organization recently formed at the home of Mrs. Charles Evans on Confederate avenue.

Other officers chosen were: Vice president, Mrs. Charles Evans; secretary, Mrs. J. S. Hucksby; treasurer, Mrs. C. E. McCarey.

Pilgrim Sons and Daughters Hold Annual Meeting Friday

The annual meeting of the Sons and Daughters of the Pilgrims, Georgia branch, will be held Friday evening, at 8 o'clock, at the Georgian Terrace hotel, with the state governor, Miss Annie Laurie Hill, presiding.

State officers and committee chairmen will give their reports and new members will be introduced. Election of state officers will take place and delegates will be elected to the general court, which will meet in Washington in April.

Captain John Vincent Babcock, U. S. N., will speak on "Naval Aspects of the War." Captain Babcock has had a very distinguished career during his 39 years' service in the United States Navy both at home and abroad. By personal direction of President Wilson, he was sent abroad prior to the declaration of war in World War I, and remained throughout the Peace Conference as personal aide to Admiral Sims, served as intelligence officer for United States Naval forces in European waters, attending the Supreme War Council and Allied Naval Councils; and conducted four special intelligence missions throughout Europe. He has held seven commands in home and foreign waters; has served on the faculty of the United States Naval War College; and by special assignment of the U. S. government served as director of the Brazilian Naval War College.

Among the decorations conferred upon Captain Babcock are: Spanish War Campaign, Battle of Santiago, Mexican Campaign, Great War Campaign Overseas, Order of the British Empire, and the French Legion of Honor.

Cataract Operation Can Be Painless

By Dr. William Brady.

Eye surgeons believe that prolonged eyestrain is responsible for many cataracts. They point out that decrease in the number of cataracts among city dwellers is due to better illumination and the increased wearing of glasses by persons whose eyesight is deficient. But they point out also that improper glasses can do as much to create or hasten changes within the eyes which later manifest themselves as cataract.

It is still too common a practice to wear glasses which are not properly fitted to the individual defect of vision.

In the earlier stage cataract is rarely apparent to the ordinary observer. It gives rise only to gradually increasing difficulty in seeing, particularly seeing near objects clearly. No reading glasses give satisfactory clearness, and persistence in close work with the eyes causes headache and watering of the eyes. Sometimes images are distorted or objects appear double. A candle or match flame, for instance, appears double or triple. For two or three years before he learned he had cataract one patient had trouble lighting his cigar—he couldn't see which of the two flames he was applying to the cigar. Sometimes one developing cataract is dazzled in sunlight and can see best in dim light or on a cloudy day.

To the lay mind cataract means blindness soon or later. This is an idea that has come down from a past era when few persons with cataract received proper treatment. The man referred to, who couldn't see to light his cigar, was operated on a few months ago, and now enjoys comfortable vision for reading and the open air activities he had been compelled to give up. Of course he wears thick lenses to take the place of the crystalline lenses removed, but he is happy about it. Every one who has cataract removed must wear such glasses at first.

In many instances development of senile cataract is so slow that the patient is aware only of slight haze of difficulty in vision but goes through life unaware of the existence of cataract. It is such cases that explain why experienced oculists are chary of informing patients of the existence of slight opacity in the lens—why give needless anxiety to a patient who, as likely as not, will never experience serious impairment of vision from the cataract?

There is another popular misconception that too often distresses victims of cataract or their families—the notion that cataract operation is a painful ordeal. It is painless in fact, before, during and after the operation.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

By Edythe Thomas Wallace.

Father: "I'm glad you enjoy playing with other boys, but let's find something you like to do alone, too. How about learning to make some of these airplane models?"

Since the well-adjusted individual is one who enjoys both the society of others and solitary pursuits, why not endeavor to help children develop in that way?

Father: "Bill is a decided extrovert who likes to be continually with other people. He's just made that way. It would be time wasted trying to interest him in books or a hobby."

How to Eat Well on a Reducing Diet

By Ida Jean Kain.

A diet is now good eating. A few years ago the stress was on what not to eat and the list was sure to include your favorite foods. But today it is on what to eat and the list is made up of so many of the foods you eat from choice that dieting is no hardship. On a balanced slimming diet you can't help but marvel at the amount of food you can eat and still lose two pounds a week—and keep your good disposition.

The science of nutrition makes it possible to plan a reducing diet that is adequate—even abundant—in every respect except calories. You can safely draw on excess body fat for part of your energy, provided all the essential food elements are furnished in the daily menus.

In planning your low calorie meals, begin the day with a good breakfast. Have fruit juice or tomato juice, buttered whole wheat toast, and coffee with one tablespoon of cream and your ration of sugar—all this for 250 calories and enough food to keep you going strong until noon.

Your reducing allowance for luncheon is about 350 calories. Choose them well and have a good meal. You might like grilled cheese, bacon and tomato on a slice of whole wheat bread, with a tossed green salad, a small serving of fruit for dessert, and hot tea with one lump of sugar. Yes, you're still on your diet!

You can dine and diet on a generous serving of roast lamb or broiled fish with lemon and parsley; fresh spinach, carrots, a hot roll of enriched or whole wheat flour, a small pat of butter, and a glass of milk with the fat calories skimmed off. The spinach and carrots are high enough in vitamin A to make up for that taken out of the milk with the cream.

There you have a day's menu which furnishes an abundance of the protective elements. It may be superior to what you have when you eat as you please and gain weight.

If you wish, you can plan your own menu according to the dietary essentials:

Orange juice, 3½ oz., or ½ grapefruit, 50
Whole wheat bread, 100%, or enriched bread, 3 thin slices 150
Butter, 3 pats, each ¼-inch thick 150
Egg, boiled, poached or scrambled 75
Lean meat, fish, or fowl, 6 oz. 300
To cook, broil, boil or bake.
Once a week, serve meat organs.
Two cooked vegetables, one yellow, or the green leafy variety 100
Raw vegetable salad mixed with Reducer's French Dressing 25
A second fruit 50
Either two glasses skim milk or one glass and 1 oz. yellow cheese 180

Studios Call in Old-Time Stars To Replace Drafted Glamor Boys

By Harold Heffernan.

HOLLYWOOD, March 10.—Hardly a day now passes without a leading man or two marching out of the celluloid capital and into some branch of the military. As a consequence the hero pinch is being seriously felt in casting circles and today directors are glad to interview third raters they were ducking only a few weeks ago.

Creaky-jointed old timers are also dusting off their makeup kits and hobbling back into the studios to make screen love to the glamor girls.

This week's departures so far have been Bill Holden, into the Army and Gene Raymond, heading toward a fighting berth in the Air Corps. George Raft is expecting an appointment momentarily and should it come this week the final scene of his current picture, "Broadway," will show him in uniform and saying goodbye to his pals.

As a temptation for him to continue screen work, MGM bought "The Sun Is My Undoing," one of the season's prize literary plums, for Clark Gable, but persistent reports continue that Clark will go into some branch of the service after finishing "Somewhere I'll Find You."

A technical copyright quirk will prevent use of the song, "My Heart Belongs to Daddy" in Paramount's picture of that name. Not a musical, but a romantic comedy, the story has no real need for the song, though it could be neatly used in the background score. Except for one thing—the studio hasn't been able to clear up the rights. Same situation occurred when Victor Herbert was made. The studio owned the music to the operettas, in this case, but didn't own the librettos.

Bob Hope reports on the ham actor who had been often married and was commenting on his current wife, "I took her for better or worse," said the dope, "but she's so much worse than I took her for."

Brown Derby lunchers were hilariously entertained when one of the Oscar winners, taking exception to a feminine columnist's remarks about her conduct at the academy dinner, invited the writer to slug it out in the alley. Not blows, just words.

When Cecil B. De Mille's 20-year-old son, Richard, a student at Columbia University, writes his famous father a letter his customary salutation is "Hail Caesar!" The boy is one of the very few who can rib the old master and get away with it. Richard's first film job was this past summer—fifth assistant director on "Reap the Wild Wind."

Reported that Vic Orsatti, actors' agent, who is about to don a naval lieutenant's uniform for the duration, asked Linda Darnell to make it a naval wedding—with no success. . . . Probably one of the most repulsive sequences Ida Lupino ever enacted was a two-day shot for "Moon Tide" in which she sprawled in a smelly bait tank. After the first preview these scenes were cut out. Ida could take it but the audience could not.

After the sneak preview of "My Favorite Blonde" a few nights ago, Henry Ginsberg, who is Paramount's boss money-watcher, grabbed Bob Hope's hand as they left the theater and chortled, "My favorite bond, don't ever leave me." P. S.—Hope pictures accounted for half of Paramount's net last year.

In little more than a year Laird Cregar has had eight pictures, one play, one operation and no vacation. The latter point will be remedied after "The Green Eyes From Paris," when Cregar will take a six weeks' rest. . . . Certain research pictures of Edgar Allan Poe show him wearing a fringe of soft whiskers along his cheeks. But they'll be missing from John Shepperd's visage when he makes love to Linda Darnell in Poe's life movie. Whiskers are not romantic.

MY DAY: Definite Service For Every One

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

NEW YORK, Monday.—We had some very interesting discussions yesterday afternoon at the White House on the subject of what the general attitude of the people should be during this war period. I've come to one very clear decision, namely, that all of us—men in the services, and men and women at home—should be drafted and told what is the job we are to do. It seems to me there should be immediately a freezing of prices, of profits and of wages. No one can be frozen without freezing aid to the maximum service out of our citizens is to draft us all and to tell us all where we can be most useful and where our work is needed. So long as we are left to volunteer, we are bound to waste our capacities and to do things which are not necessary.

We are bound, quite thoughtlessly, to waste materials which we have wasted in the past, but which we no longer have a right to waste. I would be relieved beyond measure, and so would many people throughout the nation, if an authority greater than our own personal decision told us where we could be most useful. I realize that in the White House this is a more difficult question with which to cope, than it is outside. In the last war I ran a private home and complied with whatever the government asked of us. We were never sufficiently involved in the last war, either in a military or an economic way, to require much regulation beyond what could be obtained from people of good will on a volunteer basis.

We are in quite a different situation this time. I personally am in a different situation in the White House because the President, as head of the nation, requires in his household certain things which would not be necessary in any private house. In private life, however, I should like to feel that was complying with the wishes and doing the things which those in authority thought should be done.

In talking with someone this morning, I discovered I had not conveyed one point which I think important when I spoke over the air last Sunday. I want to emphasize it in this column—we wish to increase our production of foodstuffs. The large and well-managed, and often absentee-owner farms, in this country are already producing to the maximum.

Our great hope is to increase the production on the small farm. The Farm Security Administration, working with the lowest income farmers, has proved that this can be done through wise advice in management, small loans and assistance in marketing produce. Therefore, I believe it is a good investment to increase the use of Farm Security Administration methods.

Soft Lines in an Afternoon Dress

By Lillian Mae.

Fashion goes feminine in the afternoon . . . witness the soft lines of Pattern 4026 by Lillian Mae! The scalloped "petal" yokes are new and match the high-cut skirt sections. Doesn't the little sash in front add a beguiling touch?

An all-round belt is optional. This is an easy-to-cut dress because of the princess paneling in back and the long panel in front that are both so slenderizing. Let the Sewing Instructor guide you!

Pattern 4026 is available in misses' and women's sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 takes 3 5-8 yards 39-inch fabric.

Part-Time Mother Beats Stranger's Care

By Dixie George.

Dear Dixie: I am getting a divorce from my husband and as usual money matters are important. I want to keep my child with me, but I cannot do it, as I have not the money. I have the promise of a job which will tide me over until I get a settlement from my husband. He has told me that he will not give one cent to my support nor of my child. What would you suggest that I do about the baby, since I have to go to work and there is no one to keep her?

I am afraid that if I let her father have her now, I will have trouble in getting her back later. The baby is only 4 and, of course, is at an age when she could be taken away from me and never understood.

MRS. J. K. P. It seems to me that the lawyer could make your husband give something toward the support of the child while the divorce is under way. I would suggest that you talk to him about it and see if some arrangements can be made. As for the baby, I think the thing to do would be to put her in a nursery school for the day. In that way you can have her taken care of while you are at work and can have her in the mornings and evenings.

I think you are right about the baby being at an uncertain age. She certainly can be weaned away from you, if she is allowed to go with her father. With all due respect to fathers, a child needs its mother's care at this age, and I think you should exert every effort to keep the baby. Your husband has displayed a nature that bids fair to be a bad influence upon your child. His attitude is such that I do not think he would make a good father to her. He may change, I grant you, but the outlook does not seem promising.

HARMFUL GOSSIP IS BEST IGNORED

Dear Dixie:

I came to Atlanta to live about six months ago, right after my divorce. My wife was a bad sort and I have no regrets about leaving her. I am perfectly satisfied with my life. Of course there is another woman in it now, but she won't marry me, because she insists she is a career girl. I think that is a lot of foolishness, and I am hoping to wear down her resistance. But here is the point. I took her home with me last week, to visit my family.

As fate would have it, the wife knew she had visited the family and now she has written Gladys, the new one, and has given her the lowdown about me. My wife was just no good. I hate to say that about a woman, but it is true. I will face anyone to tell that I do not love Gladys, but I admire her very much and do not care for her to think that what she has heard is true. What would you suggest I do?

WIDOWER.

I think I would wait to see what Gladys is going to say about the situation. She may ignore the whole thing because she may not believe it to be true. If you mention it she may think you have a guilty conscience. If she mentions it to you, the thing for her to say would be that your ex-wife was not telling the truth and that you hope by your actions that you can prove to her (Gladys) that the accusations are not true. You may also tell Gladys, if she should inquire, the circumstances of your divorce. You may also tell her, if she wants proof of your character, that all she has to do would be to go back to your home town and make some investigations. I think that Gladys will be clever enough to draw her own conclusions about you and will consider the letter of little consequence.

What will you wear---next year?

Nazis Getting 1,500,000 Fresh Troops, Switzerland Reports

BERN, March 10.—(P)—Germany's mobilization of the entire Axis manpower for a gigantic spring offensive is now in full swing, reports reaching Bern from various parts of Europe indicate.

In Germany itself, virtually all men able to carry arms are already in the Army, but the recent visit of Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel to Hungary and Slovakia is beginning to bear results in the form of approximately 1,500,000 fresh troops.

Up to the present these two allies had supplied only a handful of soldiers for the Russian campaign. Slovakia had furnished about 27,000 and Hungary not more than one or two divisions.

In Hungary, notices have just been posted mobilizing all men up to 46 years of age. Many of these men have never had military training because of the Trianon treaty, which limited Hungary's army to 35,000.

Slovakia's Quota.
Slovakia, with a population of 3,500,000, has been told she must furnish 100,000 men. Most of them are already under arms and have received some training.

Italy has been called upon to deliver many more troops than she has yet sent to the eastern front, and these as quickly as possible. Some reports mention a figure of 1,000,000 but this is unverified.

Rumania already has about 1,000,000 men in the field, her maximum capacity. It is not known whether Bulgaria will declare war on Russia and send forces to aid in the campaign. It is known, however, that Axis staff officers held discussions with Bulgarian leaders in recent weeks and diplomatic circles believe the question was considered.

German Blood.
Men of German blood are being mobilized in the occupied countries. All Germans between 20 and 42 in the German occupied province of French Lorraine have been ordered to register before March 21. German leaders in Yugoslavia have ordered all Germans fit for military service to register.

There were about 500,000 Germans in Yugoslavia before the occupation, but many of those in Croatia have already been mobilized.

Commenting on the Hungarian mobilization, the Swiss newspaper, Berner Tagblatt, said the Axis is preparing for a fight which will make everything in past two years fade into insignificance.

"According to Axis doctrine, individual states will be recompensed according to their efforts," the newspaper said. "Hungary and Rumania both are thinking of Transylvania."

Hitler Conscripts 400,000 Russians

MOSCOW, March 10.—(P)—The prominent Ukrainian writer, Alexander Korneichuk, asserted in Izvestia today that Hitler had removed 400,000 peasants from the Kiev, Volyn and Podolsk provinces to Germany for forced labor.

Germany also is pouring youth into "farmers, officers and colonizers" into the Ukraine, the prominently displayed story in the official government newspaper continued.

The writer said that in the western provinces of the Ukraine the Germans had founded 570 estates and removed the peasants.

He cited the words of the new German Governor Erich Koch who stated the Germans were "making the rich land useful for Europe."

Remaining peasants in occupied parts of the Ukraine are waiting not for spring planting but for the approaching Red army which will liberate them, the writer concluded.

Hitler Fears Soviet Push Into Germany

LONDON, March 10.—(P)—Haunted by the milder specter of spring thaws and fearful that a Soviet push from Leningrad might penetrate German soil, Adolf Hitler was reported today to be calling up his ultimate reserves for an all-or-nothing offensive in Russia as soon as possible.

Reliable sources described as "almost certainly accurate" confidential advisers that the Nazi Fuehrer had abandoned earlier plans for a defensive campaign in the north while concentrating on a big drive in the south.

Instead, they said, he evidently had determined on attacking all along the line.

This was said to be due to his fear that defeat of a defensive force on the Leningrad front would lead the Red Army into the Baltic states, behind the German Army and with a clear path to invade Germany itself.

Red Army successes around Staraya Russa and a weakening of the Finnish forces were said to have raised this fear.

A supplement to the Soviet mid-night communiqué said Russian units had broken through German lines on one sector of the northwestern front and occupied 17 populated places since Sunday.

"A large number of enemy men and officers were killed and many prisoners taken," the communiqué said. It added that progress was made also on the southwest front where, in one sector, four "populated places" were captured.

Fifth District Music Festival To Begin Today

Hundreds of Grade School Pupils To Take Part in 3-Day Event.

D. A. R. Junior Committee Hears Reports at Meeting

The committee for junior membership of the Atlanta chapter, D. A. R., Miss Sarah Hoshall, chairman, met Tuesday with Mrs. L. Ransom Burtis, 3015 Nancy's Creek road. The co-hostesses were Miss Dorothy Waldman, Mesdames Esmond Walhall, F. Homer Bell, Caspar J. Johnson, E. Lee McNaughton, Mrs. Leonard Haas, past president of the League of Women's Voters, spoke on "Home Defense Is Our Job."

Mrs. A. J. Beck reported on the important work being done by the Americanization committee through the distribution of D. A. R. manuals for citizenship. Mrs. George Connell reported 32 books contributed by members to the Merchant Marine Library committee. These books will be sent to New Orleans to be placed on United States ships.

Mrs. Spotswood Parker introduced a new member, Mrs. J. Gordon Elliott. The red, white and blue sash made for the Red Cross was shown by Mrs. Harvey J. Pate, chairman. A report on Red Cross production was given by Mrs. Robert Latta, and one on surgical dressings by Mrs. T. M. McCleskey. Six Motor Corps members were introduced. Miss Sarah Hoshall told of cash contributions made to the Red Cross.

The recent radio program, sponsored by the committee and designed for the entertainment of children was reported. The program was dedicated to the members of the Dolly Madison Society, C. A. R., and to the members of the Junior American Citizens' Clubs, which were organized by the committee. Mrs. Warren Foster told a fairy story of the making of the American flag and Mrs. Jule Felton sang "America the Beautiful" and "Star Spangled Banner." Mrs. Robert Caldwell told of the work of the Junior American Citizens' Clubs, which gives the children a better understanding of the history of the country, teaches them the high ideals of great American heroes, the privileges and obligations they have made in our democratic form of government, and brings them into a deeper realization of the American way of life.

Other reports on patriotic educational work among children were given by Mrs. William A. Bugg, senior president, Dolly Madison Society, C. A. R., and also by Mrs. George Connell and Miss Dorothy Waldman, directors of Junior American Citizens' Clubs. All members are invited to be present at Craigie House on March 14, when there will be an antique exhibit and talks on Dorothy Dix and Emily Post.

All in the Game

BY JACK TROY

A Career Man

ST. AUGUSTINE, March 10.—Old Man Browne is the center of attraction in the Cracker Youth Movement. He's had a career, Old Man Browne has. When he started playing professional baseball in 1929, most of his Cracker colleagues were in grammar school. Some of them were just out of kindergarten.

And yet Old Man Browne, officially christened James William Earle, has just celebrated his 31st birthday. That still makes him a couple of years the junior of Skipper Paul Raper Richards.

In fact, Richards has been playing professional baseball as long as any Cracker 17 years of age has been born.

Browne, who's going to play first base for the Crackers, started his career as a pitcher with Louisville, but he doesn't brag about it. He appeared in only five games before he was shifted to Dayton. He finished the year as something besides a pitcher and had a batting average of .301.

Best year Browne ever had was in the Southern League with Little Rock in 1935. That is, so far as batting average goes. He hit the ball at a .345 clip for 140 games. The following year, at Minneapolis, he batted .345 and knocked in 126 runs.

In his 13-year career—he's starting on his 14th year as a Cracker—Browne has been up for short stretches with Pittsburgh and an entire season—that of 1937 and part of 1938—with the Philadelphia Phillies. But don't hold that against him.

Browne's a durable veteran. In 1940 he played 153 games as a first baseman at New Orleans, and last year he appeared in 152 games at Chattanooga. He batted in 87 and 89 runs, respectively.

Likes Those Signs

James William Earle Browne is a potent right-field hitter. He adores those signs at Ponce de Leon park. Many of the mark he's made on them, and many's the time he has rifled Cracker pitches in the home-run grooves.

They sort of scoff at Old Man Browne's fielding around the league. But I recall that Lester Burge's value to Atlanta was as a gent who could powder the ball to right field and not as a fancy Dan at first base.

Browne is not expected to hit as well as Burge—he probably won't connect for more than half as many home runs—but he'll be fully as steady afield, and his penchant for driving in runs will be a substantial aid to the offense.

It may be noted, in studying Browne's lifetime record, that he has had many fine seasons in driving in runs, which

Cortes Counted on as Cracker Pitcher of Year

Youngster of 19 Has Confidence He Lacked in '41

If Miller Comes Through Crackers Will Have Stout Pitching.

By JACK TROY.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March 10.—Rene Cortes has been singled out by camp followers to be the Crackers' pitcher of the year.

Cortes, 19, should come into his own in his third year of professional baseball. He has come through the gangling stage of young manhood and now has the suppleness and strength he formerly lacked. Add to that the experience he has had and it gives a total of considerable promise. In 1941, Cortes won eight games and lost 11 and learned a lot. This year he won't have quite as good a team behind him, chances are, but he'll be a whole lot better pitcher. He has everything it takes, including confidence. He lacked that necessary quality last year.

STOUT PITCHING. If Larry Miller is successful in his comeback efforts the Crackers might have a pitching staff to be compared favorably with any other team in the Southern league. Floyd Stromme, Pep Rambert, Ed Nowak, Miller and Cortes are five experienced right-handers. Lefties like Elwood Lawson and Earl McGowan have a chance to replace Bob Chipman. Pitching could be a strong point of the youthful Cracker outfit.

The infield was completed with the arrival of Earle Browne, who engaged in his first workout today. Browne reported thin as a shad and ready to go. Rookie Shortstop Jim Cox will be helped no little by having fellows like Charlie Glock and Charlie Letchas playing alongside him.

BEST DAY YET. The best day of the spring camp, with little wind and a hot sun, greeted the squad today. And in the five-hour workout there was much attention paid to fundamentals, such as pitchers fielding bunts and throwing to bases. The last half of the drill was devoted to batting practice. With Browne's arrival the squad was complete with the exception of a rookie infielder, Walter Heckel, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who is to be given a trial.

WHO WILL IT BE?—Here are the outfielders in the Cracker training camp in St. Augustine and they are all rookies. One is given as good a chance to make the grade as the next. There isn't a single class man among them

Moultrie Five Rules Favorite In State Meet

Coachless Workmore High Has Good Chance at Class C Title.

MACON, Ga., March 10.—(P)—Little Workmore High school, which hasn't had a coach since 1937, was favored tonight to win the Class C basketball championship of Georgia.

Here for the annual state high school tournament, the Workmore team is shooting for the crown left undefended when Bonair was eliminated recently in its home district tournament. And much of its hopes ride on the goal-firing ability of its captain, Preston Spire, who is credited by Superintendent J. A. Fordham with keeping the team going this season.

Workmore, drawing a bye in the first round of the tournament, meets Mansfield in a second-round game, and if successful, will engage Social Circle or the winner of a Dacula-Fairmount first-round match.

Dacula was runner-up last year. In the Class B division, Athens meets Mansfield in a second-round game, and if successful, will engage Social Circle or the winner of a Dacula-Fairmount first-round match.

First-round matches tomorrow send Hogansville against Austell and Perry against Cochran in the "B" division, and pair Dacula against Fairmount and Preston vs. Barney in the "C" division.

Six teams in each division drew byes.

Second-round pairings: Class "B"—Canton vs. winner of Hogansville-Austell; Ocala vs. Athens; Moultrie vs. Brooklet; Decatur vs. winner of Perry-Cochran game.

Holcomb Named Miami Head Coach

OXFORD, Ohio, March 10.—(P)—Stuart Holcomb, 32-year-old football and track coach at Washington College and Muskingum College, today was appointed head football coach at Miami University here.

Holcomb's appointment was announced by Merl A. Dittmer, director of intercollegiate athletics, and ended a three-month search for a successor to Frank Wilton, whose resignation becomes effective in June.

Holcomb, captain of the 1931 Ohio State University football team, coached football at Findlay College and Muskingum College before going to Washington and Jefferson last season.

Ward Lambert, Purdue's basketball coach, gets a free dinner tonight for having been able to survive 25 seasons of Big Ten basketball.

Wade Asks Army For Active Duty

DURHAM, N. C., March 10.—(P)—Wallace Wade, director of athletics and head football coach at Duke University, said today he had applied for active Army service in a combat capacity, but, so far as he knows, no action has been taken upon his offer to serve. In the first World War, Wade was a captain of cavalry. He will be 50 years old next June 15.

S. I. A. A. Votes To Ban Athletic Subsidization

Resolution To Be Submitted to Annual Convention; Forget Gate Receipts, Schools Are Told.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 10.—(P)—Members of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association voted today to ban subsidization of athletics by placing the athlete "upon the same basis as any other student."

"Aid should be given only on the basis of scholarship, need and character," a resolution passed by delegates to an executive meeting here stated.

The action was declared as not being retroactive and "all past obligations to students now enrolled in college may be honored."

Passage of the resolution, which will be submitted to the annual convention in Atlanta next December, came after a full day of debate by administrative representatives of 17 of the conference's 35 members.

Dr. J. W. Provine, of Mississippi College, SIAA president for more than 20 years, declared that "the action of this meeting will give an impetus for members to go back to the fundamental principles of athletics and to forget the gate receipts."

"We hope that the smaller colleges will play more games with institutions which are in their own class and operating under the same conditions," Dr. Provine said. "When a member of this association finds an opponent is subsidizing its players then it simply does not have to continue athletic relations with that opponent," he added.

However, another delegate who declined to be quoted by name said he believed "nothing has been accomplished by this meeting." He added that "it possibly may be a step in the right direction although it looks pretty much like a goal that will be hard to attain."

Tech Fencers Win and Lose On Road Trip

The Jacket swordsmen tasted defeat for the first time this season as they dropped a foil match to Vanderbilt in a return match at Nashville last weekend, 10 to 6. The Techsters had previously beaten the Vandy boys, 9 to 7, but their rivals were much improved at this encounter and were able to obtain the balance of power.

Captain Arthur Wade and Straiton Hard both chalked up a pair of wins for Tech. Saturday afternoon was a different story and the Jackets got back into their usual form by downing the Kentucky team, 11 to 6, in a three-weapon match. Here Tech won the foil easily, 7-2, and took the epee, 3-1. Kentucky retaliated in the saber, however, winning that event, 3-1.

Jimmy Sturrock won two foil bouts and a saber match; Straiton Hard a pair of foil bouts, and Ed Price a foil match and an epee duel.

This will be an off-week for the fencers, giving them ample time to prepare for any difficulties that may be anticipated with the North Carolina team which comes to Atlanta on March 20.

Durocher Praises Bob Chipman

MIAMI, Fla., March 10.—(P)—The Brooklyn Dodgers returned to the United States by air yesterday after a three-week spring training stay in Havana, where the New York Giants were defeated in a pair of games.

Manager Leo Durocher's first words after reaching shore were in praise of a rookie, Bob Chipman.

Chipman, a towering left-handed pitcher who won 17 games while losing nine with Atlanta last season, is a native of Brooklyn and is expected to fill the Dodgers' need of an effective southpaw. He reported to the National League champions late last season in time to win one contest.

Emil Leonard Signs Contract After Confab

ORLANDO, Fla., March 10.—(P)

Emil (Dutch) Leonard, big round-faced knuckleball specialist who hurled 18 victories for the laggardly Washington Senators last season, signed his contract for 1942 tonight after a two-hour conference with President Clark Griffith.

His agreement to terms, completing the Senators' squad, ended a stubborn holdout which had gone along for weeks with Griffith threatening his pitching ace in print with fines, suspensions, trades and other penalties. However, all this was forgotten during the confab, and it was believed that Leonard settled for about $13,000 and a bonus based on Washington's attendance this season.

Father Flanagan reports that every one of his boy's town kids plans to register to play baseball March 30 when the National Semi-Pro Baseball Congress holds its national registration day.

Stocks

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP)—Selling activities dominated the stock market's course today and various industrial issues fell to new lows for the last year and longer.

Offerings of the depressed shares were not unusually large, but absorption was notably poor. A scattering of coppers, aircrafts and specialties managed to emerge with minor gains.

The market again was affected by the gloomy tone of war reports from the southwest Pacific and it also was shadowed by the specter of rising taxes, which speculative sources interpreted as a promise of considerable dividend cutting in the months ahead.

Focusing attention on the tax situation was an announcement by the National Association of Manufacturers just before the market's close that this organization favored "taxation to the limit—leaving only enough for survival."

Fractionally better in a somewhat heavy curb were American Light & Traction and Cities Service. Lower marks were posted for Glen Alder Coal, Aluminum of America and Humble Oil.

Many railroad issues breezed into new high levels for the past year or longer as the market, leaving other groups far behind in a narrow range and mixed trend.

'Bugs' Baer Says:

We are fed up on the Gentle Jennies who are slobbering sweetness and light.

Folks, the history of totalitarianism proves that turning-the-other-cheek is a suicide pact.

The Gentle Jennies and the conscientious objectors may refuse to carry water in a prairie fire but they do not surrender their privilege of running when it gets too hot.

We are through with the Quislings who claim revenge is contraband and that it is okay to shake hands with a stab in the back.

P. S. The innocent bystander is a man without a country. From now on we fish, chop bait or go ashore.

New Theater Home Mission Will Be Built To Hold 2-Day In Smyrna Meeting Here

Work on 1,000 Capacity Building To Begin at Once.

Plans for construction of a new and modern motion picture theater at Smyrna were announced yesterday by J. Schley Thompson, Atlanta banker, and Mrs. Thompson, joint partners in the enterprise.

Work will begin immediately, Thompson said, and the building should be completed by the time the first influx of employees reach the Smyrna area to begin work at the mammoth Bell bomber plant nearby.

The theater will be operated under direction of Lucas & Jenkins on a 20-year lease from the owners. It will have a seating capacity of approximately 1,000, and when completely equipped will represent an investment of approximately $100,000.

The first motion picture house to be built in Smyrna, the new theater will be erected on a lot fronting on Highway 41, in the center of town. The property has been in the family of Mrs. Thompson for many years.

The theater will be of steel and brick construction, with a marble front. Modern in design throughout, air-conditioned, and luxurious in its appointments, it will be equipped with the latest sound and projection machinery.

Enlargement Program To Be Discussed for 'Mushroom Towns.'

An enlargement of the Presbyterian home mission program to reach the new communities, training camps, and "mushroom" towns springing up because of the upheaval of war will be discussed at the two-day annual meeting of the Assembly's Home Mission Council, beginning at 9:30 o'clock this morning in the Henry Grady hotel.

The Rev. R. D. Bedinger, of Asheville, N. C., will preside over the session, to be attended by one representative of each of the 17 Presbyterian synods and by 12 members of the executive committee on home missions.

School Hygiene Course Proposed

The administration department of the Atlanta school system yesterday was instructed to investigate the feasibility of a social hygiene course for junior and senior high schools.

Study of the proposal was ordered by the board of education after Dr. Charles Rife, board member, related some of his studies of social diseases and had stressed the importance of hygienic training. Rife said many of the high school students would not go to college and that every individual needs training in this respect.

If the investigation proves the course desirable, the administration department will work out a curriculum.

Consolidation Of Army, Navy Is Hit by F.D.R.

Services Working Efficiently at Present, Says President.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP)—President Roosevelt dismissed proposals for a merger of Army and Navy under one department today with a remark that the services seemed to be working well together under the present system.

At the same time, Chairman May, Democrat, Kentucky, of the House Military Affairs Committee, urged agitation for a unified command. He said the proponents of such consolidation should not "rock the boat in time of storm."

During the day, Senator Clark, Democrat, Missouri, long an advocate of combining the War and Navy department in a "department of national defense," introduced a bill to carry his plan into effect.

Under his measure, the head of the new department would, under the President, be in command of land, sea and air forces. The present posts of secretary of war and secretary of the navy would be abolished.

Mr. Roosevelt said he had not heard of the Clark bill, but he made his opposition to the suggested consolidation unmistakable. So long as the various military branches were working well together, he said, it made little difference whether there was a single department or several.

The President also discouraged discussion of the possibility of establishing a supreme command. A reporter mentioned that Senator Chandler, Democrat, Kentucky, had said such a step was imminent. Mr. Roosevelt asked the correspondent what was meant by the term supreme command. The correspondent said he did not know. The President added, then, that neither did anyone else who was writing on the subject.

Miss Clyde White Succumbs Here
